Capital Abuzz With Report of Churchill Visit

Correspondent Claims Premier, F. D. R. Met Off Canada.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—The capital buzzed with rumor and speculation today that President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Winston Churchill, of Great Britain; Prime Minister Mackenzie King, of Canada, and Harry L. Hopkins, lease-lend administrator, were about to engage in a momentous conference, possibly in Canada or somewhere on the Atlantic ocean.

The reports that the four would get together to discuss problems arising from the war and American aid to nations battling the Axis, lacked any substantiation whatever, and their origin was dubious. The rumors persisted, however, despite the fact that high officials here and elsewhere disclaimed any knowledge of such a meeting.

The Miami Herald's Washington correspondent, however, quoted "unusually reliable diplomatic sources" as saying President Roosevelt and the prime minister met in the North Atlantic this afternoon.

Meeting "Described."

"The meeting was held off New Brunswick, according to British and Canadian sources," the Herald story said, "while other sources claimed that Mr. Roosevelt had met the British premier off Newfoundland.

"That Churchill left London about 2 a. m. Tuesday, eastern standard time, was well established.

"British sources merely stated that 'it is highly probable' that the President and the British premier have met."

The story was written by Clifford A. Prevost of the Herald's Washington bureau.

The reports apparently sprang chiefly from the unusual secrecy surrounding President Roosevelt's cruise aboard the presidential yacht Potomac in northern waters. Linked with this was the announcement in the British house of commons that Prime Minister Churchill would not participate in a forthcoming debate on the conduct of the war before parliament recesses for the summer.

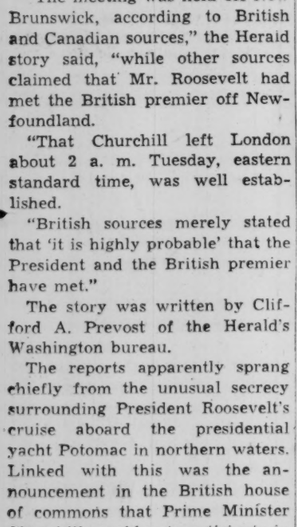

Churchill Preoccupied.

Clement Attlee, lord privy seal and British labor party leader, explained that the prime minister was preoccupied "with urgent matters connected with the war."

Some persons here immediately drew the conclusion that Churchill might be flying to Canada for a secret rendezvous with the President and that Hopkins might accompany him.

The latter arrived in England Sunday night from Moscow, and reports from London stated that he had been in seclusion since

LESTER BURGE

DOWN THE LINE—This scene in a tobacco warehouse at Tifton was typical yesterday as the chants of auctioneers resounded through the tobacco belt. Here are buyers and sellers looking over the leaves that became cash for growers in Georgia and Florida.

'Hit's Enough,' Georgia Farmer Says of Cash for Tobacco Crop

Dodgers Obtain Chipman and Burge in Deal

$50,000 Purchase Viewed as Record in Class A-1 Baseball.

The Atlanta Baseball Corporation yesterday began its harvesting of the richest crop of players in Southern League history by peddling Lester Burge, mighty first baseman, and Bob Chipman, southpaw pitcher, to the Brooklyn Dodgers for a price exceeding $50,000.

Cracker President Earl Mann, whose keen baseball sense and faith in both players finally brought the Atlanta team a price never before equalled in Class A-1 baseball, would not divulge the exact amount paid him by Larry MacPhail, Brooklyn president.

"You can just say it is a record price," smiled the outstanding Cracker leader who generally is recognized as the finest executive in the minors.

Of the more than $50,000 the Crackers realized from the unprecedented deal, Burge was believed to have brought something like $37,000. That would mean that Mann had made good his promise in the spring of 1940 to add a thousand dollars to Burge's price tag every time he hit a home run. To date the big lefthanded hitter has poled 34 round-trippers. He is far ahead of the field with 126 runs batted across. His fielding has been a great surprise to every one except Mann and Manager Paul Richards, who overlooked his 1940 shortcomings because he was new to the position and greatly handicapped by an injured thumb.

The Atlanta club undoubtedly will sell other members of its pennant-bound team. Certain to be sold is Connie Ryan, 20-year-old second baseman who has been a magnet for scouts all season. Other fine prospects are Emile Lochbaum and Ed Heusser, pitchers, and Charlie Glock, third baseman.

GIANTS TO BUY CONNIE RYAN

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—(AP)—Eddie Brannick, secretary of the New York Giants, announced tonight that the club intends to exercise the option it holds to purchase Second Baseman Connie Ryan, of the Atlanta Crackers.

Average Bright Leaf Producer Pleased With Return.

By HAROLD MARTIN,
Constitution Staff Writer.

HAHIRA, Ga., Aug. 5.—This is a piece about Led Wilson, and his wife, Frannie, and their younguns, Gip, who is 16 and nearly grown, and Ralph, the middle one, and Sue May, who is 8, but already a deft worker at the handing bench when tobacco-curing time has come.

Led sold his tobacco today. He got a good price for it, better than he was looking for, since it was trashy and lacked body, and when he walked away from the pay-off window with the blue check in his hand, he felt a little better than he thought he was going to feel.

He sold 1,200 pounds that brought an average of 22 cents, which was $264 before the warehouse fees were out and $250 even when all that had been paid. Which made Led feel pretty well satisfied, and Frannie, when he told her, smiled.

There is no Led Wilson, of course, and what he made and sold and earned and the size of his family and even their names are what you would get if you poured all the families that grow bright leaf into one big barrel and stirred them up and reached in and drew one out. Which means Led Wilson is just the average of them all.

Which makes this the story of all of them, black and white, who grow the bright leaf in the great tobacco belt that stretches from Pelham in the far southwest all the way up to Statesboro, in Bullock at the other end. It is the story of the back-breaking work they did, the high hopes and the

Georgia Tobacco Brings 1 to 54 Cents a Pound

Chant of the tobacco auctioneer rolled yesterday through the rafters of Georgia warehouses as, the big cash crop went to market at 17 points in the bright leaf belt.

Farmers were pleased as consistent bidding moved much of the first day's offerings at from 20 to 30 cents per pound. Grades which last year brought 26 and 27 cents, were going yesterday at 30 and 34.

An especially fine basket of tobacco at Douglas set a high for the day at 54 cents.

Bidding on low quality weed slumped to 2 and 3 cents, with several baskets at Baxley bringing the bottom bid of 1 cent.

Buyers usually kept their bids above the government-guaranteed minimum of 19.6 cents.

The farmer got his cash within a few minutes after the auctioneer and buyer visited his basket on the warehouse sales floor.

'Dirty Boche' Forbidden In Occupied Belgium

BRUSSELS, Occupied Belgium, Aug. 5.—(AP)—A German war council sitting at Antwerp has ruled that calling a Fleming "a dirty Boche" constituted anti-German slander.

A Belgian shipping clerk charged with using the words in referring to a Flemish worker was given a four-month prison term.

Temperature Drop Here Brief; Warmer Forecast

The cool spell which hit Atlanta suddenly Monday afternoon, resulting in a 12-degree drop between 5 o'clock and 6 o'clock, is destined to be short-lived.

The Weather Bureau forecast "somewhat warmer" temperatures for today with a minimum of 70 degrees this morning and a high of 90 degrees in the afternoon.

Considerable cloudiness helped keep the mercury down yesterday morning but it climbed to 85 yesterday afternoon. Afternoon thundershowers are forecast again.

Encirclement Effort Seen as War's Greatest

Moscow Campaign Subordinated to Maneuver for Kiev.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

The German command, apparently subordinating for the time being its long and costly effort to break the Red defenses on the Moscow approaches, appeared last night to have turned part of its main army of the center sharply southward to add to the enormous pressure being put upon the Ukraine by the southern Nazi wing.

This suggested the development of the most grandiose maneuver for encirclement attempted since the beginning of the invasion, if not in history.

Too, it supported earlier indications that the Germans were preparing a supreme effort at whatever cost to conquer the Ukraine before the approach of bad weather.

Smolensk Break Claimed.

News of the surprising deflection of the central German thrust came in the claim of the Nazi command that its forces had made a widening break-through to a point 62 miles southeast of Smolensk, the heart of the Soviet center, and in the process had "partly annihilated and partly encircled" a Russian body of unstated size.

This was accompanied by the claim that German shock troops advancing far to the south below Kiev had overrun strong Soviet field positions, taking 43 bunkers and at least 6,000 prisoners and killing twice that many Red soldiers.

In this area, it was said in Berlin, the apparent assignment of the Nazis was to smash through for an eventual swing northwest to meet the erstwhile German forces of the center which now are moving southeast. The grand purpose would be not only to isolate Kiev itself but the Ukraine Hinterland from the Black Sea.

Bel Tserkov Disputed.

The Germans specifically asserted that Bel Tserkov, a major Soviet defensive area some 50 miles southwest of Kiev, was in German hands. In the north it was claimed that Kholm, which lies 250 miles northeast of Moscow, likewise had been occupied.

The Soviet command in its communique for yesterday did not mention Kholm, although it previously had acknowledged fighting in that area about midway between Leningrad and Moscow.

This Soviet war bulletin implied, however, that the Russian lines were holding both north and south of Kiev—that is, about Korosten and Bel Tserkov, respectively.

Far-spread and savage Red counter-attacks were reported in Moscow. In some of these the biggest Soviet tanks were in action. Two such land battleships were claimed to have routed an entire German column, including a battalion of motorized infantry, a company of light tanks and 20 armored cars.

Red Star, army newspaper, asserted that the failure of the German blitzkrieg to split the Red army lines was a "very serious failure of the whole Fascist war machine."

CAN'T SING FOR FREEDOM—Mara Manet, French blues singer, discovered in a Los Angeles court that to obtain marital freedom one had to do a bit more than sing. She learned she either must produce a witness named in her divorce suit against Robert Teldy when it was filed in Paris or wait five and a half years and sue to have him declared legally dead. Teldy, she said, had not been heard from by her since he joined the French air corps just before the German invasion.

Thai Officials Acknowledge Tokyo Demands

Two U. S. Cruisers Visit Australia, Maybe To Impress Nippon.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Formidable land, air and naval reinforcements reached the mighty British base of Singapore yesterday and belief spread in the Far East that Britain might be preparing a swift occupation of key points in Thailand to head off the Japanese.

(In Washington, the U. S. Navy disclosed that two heavy United States cruisers had arrived at Brisbane, Australia, on what was described as a training cruise.)

Grave Decision Faced.

Dispatches from Thailand—which adjoins French Indo-China, scene of the recent diplomatic victory that gave Japan bases within relatively easy striking distance of Singapore, Hongkong and Manila—said plainly that the government was conscious that a grave and perhaps fateful decision must be made as to relations with Japan on the one hand and Britain and the United States on the other.

A possible Indication that this decision might be to resist any Japanese invasion was given in an official announcement at Bangkok that a tank headquarters for Thailand's eastern forces had been established at Battambang, Cambodia, 35 miles from Seimreap, Indo-China, which the Japanese occupied yesterday.

"Another Poland" Pictured.

Contingents of mechanized troops were dispatched to Battambang along with large numbers of police and civil oficers. The town is in the area recently ceded to Thailand from French Indo-China.

Thailand, it was generally agreed, might at any time become the Poland or the Syria of the Far East—a theater in which Britain would draw the line against any further Japanese expansion or infiltration.

That Japan was pressing certain demands was in effect acknowledged by Thai officials.

Broadcast Japanese reports that Thailand had recognized the Japanese puppet government of Manchoukuo were confirmed by the Bangkok government. But while the Japanese appeared to see a certain complaisance in such

Atlantan Aids In Perfecting Lumbago Relief

Doctor Has Performed 300 Operations To Cure Sciatica.

By FRANK DRAKE.

A surgical operation an Atlanta-born doctor aided in developing and introduced in the southeast is bringing relief today to thousands of persons suffering from sciatica—the bugaboo ailment of big industry.

Sciatica is probably more commonly known as lumbago—an ailment which produces a terrific pain in the back extending usually into the legs. Its most common victims are men and women working in industrial plants who suddenly develop a "catch in the back" after a heavy lifting job.

A Boston doctor first discovered the nerve operation necessary to relieve the pain of sciatica and the Atlanta doctor, with several others, took up his method and developed it until today it has become generally adopted over the country.

The Atlanta neurological surgeon who did this work began it seven years ago while studying and teaching at McGill University in Montreal and four years ago returned here to practice. The Constitution is not using his name because of the rules of the Fulton County Medical Society regulating ethics of the medical profession.

Red Star, army newspaper, asserted that the failure of the German blitzkrieg to split the Red army lines was a "very serious failure of the whole Fascist war machine."

Dr. Jayson Mixter was the Boston neurological surgeon who first

Million Rail Workers Given Vote on Strike

Leaders Refuse To Ask Mediation Board Aid, Decide on Ballot.

CHICAGO, Aug. 5.—(AP)—Representatives of 19 railroad labor organizations decided late today to take immediate strike votes among approximately 1,200,000 members after the carriers had rejected their demands for higher wages.

Union spokesmen reported that the ballots would be sent out at once and predicted that the results would be known in a week.

Leaders of the two groups of brotherhoods—the five operating unions and the 14 nonoperating unions—stated that they would not ask the National Railway Mediation Board to intervene, but added that they would accept the board's services if it elected to step into the dispute.

Earlier in the day, representatives of 125 rail lines, embracing 99.1 per cent of the nation's mileage, informed the labor leaders that they were unable to meet requests for pay hikes which the owners calculated would add $900,000,000 a year to their operating expenses.

The nonoperating unions reported they would solicit their members' stand on those two issues and also on the workers' demands for vacations with pay.

If the Mediation Board does not intervene, President Roosevelt could postpone or avert a walkout by appointing an emergency fact-finding board to review the problems and recommend solution.

Two Georgian Airmen Return From England

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Aug. 5.—(AP)—Four of the 50 Americans among 161 passengers who arrived today on the American export ship Excambion were four United States air corps second lieutenants who flew in England as observers for this country. They were Benjamin Irving, of Washington, Ga.; John Mitchell, Enid, Miss.; John Holst, Savannah, Ga., and Jim Collins, Meridian, Miss.

Passengers quoted them as saying they considered the American bomber superior to the English make but that engines used in the British Spitfire fighter plane had much better cooling systems than any made in the United States.

'Hit's Enough,' Farmer Says of Tobacco Check

dark despairs they felt, the money that they finally got and what they had to do with it when it came.

For tobacco, Led Wilson likes to say, "is the mos' worrisome weed there is. It can promise the most and give the least. And promise the least and give the most. So you don't never know where you stand."

Hopes Held High.

"It's the most unconvenient devilish mess ever a man growed," says Led. "But when it treats you right——"

Led Wilson hoped, when he went to the clearing he had made in the woods the week before Christmas, that his crop this year would treat him right.

And he told Frannie as he carefully mixed the two tablespoonfuls of the fine brown seed in a bucket of ashes and fertilizer: "Maybe this is hit. Maybe this year we'll get a good crop and a good price. And you can have that sofy you've set your mind on in the catalogue."

Things looked right well with the seed bed at first, under the cheesecloth covering the tiny shoots showed green as a gourd, sturdy and pushing up fast. And Led, as he took the covering off in the morning so the tiny plants could get the mild midday sun, and covered them up against the cold at night, felt mighty hopeful. You could hear him singing in the woods as he chopped the oak and the gum and the pine for the wood that in late summer would feed the curing fires at the barns.

Then one night he came in to supper with his face ax-handle long. Frannie took one look, and knew.

"The blue mold's hit," she said, and he nodded.

"It has hit," he said, "and they are a-wiltin' and a dying like you never saw. We'll haf to spray."

"We'll wait," said Frannie, grimly. "We sowed extra. We'll see if they won't over it by themselves."

Led shook his head but Frannie was right. Thousands died but plenty lived to plant the two-acre patch the government man told Led that he could have. Even if he did narrow his rows down to 3½ feet instead of four. And set his plants closer than usual, to make up for his allotment being cut.

Early March had come, and the gourd-green plants were pretty as a picture again in their rich seed bed in the woods.

"We'll plant after the first rain," said Led, looking at the cloudless sky.

But it didn't rain. And it didn't rain. April came without its showers and the fields that Led had ready, waiting for the transplanting, lay dusty under the sun. Hope that had sprung up when the blue mold died, crashed again in the face of the drouth.

Finally there was a shower, from sunup to sundown Led worked. Frannie toiled beside him, transplanting the stunted plants that the two boys hurried from the seedbed. Sue May toted water like a grown woman, though the jug was heavy.

Back-Breaking Work.

"Lord let 'em take holt," said Led when the field was done, his back one screaming ache from the long stooping.

They took holt. But they didn't thrive. They stayed there, stunted, under the broiling sun while Led and the boys plowed shallow, breaking the crust into a powdery mulch to hold the morning dew and draw the deep-down moisture from the earth.

The fleas came and he fought them with sulphur. The bud worm started slashing at the roots. The full moon brought the hideous horn-worm. Led and his tribe picked and sprayed and fell in bed at night too weary to eat, aching too bad to sleep. And the drouth held.

"Hit ain't worth fooling with," said Led. But Frannie looked at the sky. "It's gonna rain," she said. And it rained.

It rained for weeks and the tobacco grew so fast a man could nearly see it with his eye. The bloom started to form and Led went to the field and topped each stalk down to nine and 10 leaves on a side.

Topping Process.

The topping brought out the suckers and from dawn to night in the fields younguns pulled off the green shoots that formed above each leaf, sapping the leaf, robbing it of its body.

Fast as it had grown, it started ripening, down close to the ground the bottom leaves, the sand lugs, were losing their brilliant green.

"Me and Gip hits the field at daylight," said Led. "You and Ralph and the little 'un hand and tie while we bring it in. Git the fire a-going. We start curin' tonight."

Down the long rows the mule-drawn slide crept, and Led and his boy knelt between the tall rows in the pitiless heat, "cropping" the sand lugs.

That night Led stayed with his fires, watching the thermometer as it hovered at 85 degrees. Peering into the barn he saw the color coming, saw the lemon-yell coming out. When he had his color he stepped up his heat, to dry the leaves. When they felt properly "brickle" to his unerring hand, the flames roared higher. Inside it was 175 degrees and the green stems were turning brown.

Proper Curing.

"Draw the fires," said Led, when all was done. "Open the doors and let the moist in. Let it come in order. Hit's dry as dust and it can't be handled. It'll crumble all to pieces. Let it get tough and soople from the moist in the air."

Then, sleepless for 72 hours except for cat-naps by his fires, he staggered red-eyed to bed.

All this toil and hope and heartbreak was behind Led Wilson as he drove into town to hear his tobacco sold. Already, three nights before, he had taken it from the packhouse and brought it in—by dark. Of course, so the sun wouldn't dry the weight out of it.

He had checked it in and the hook man had put it down in the row he asked for. "Right along here, if you don't mind," he said. "They'll git to it just when they git in their swing. They'll start off hard to please and get better and then they'll get hot and sweaty and hard to please again. Put it right here."

Then, as if he has never seen it before, he kneels down beside it and runs his fingers through it. He smells it and rumples it between his hands and listens to its rustle. He walks down the long rows and looks at other tobacco and comes back and looks at his own again.

He tells Frannie that night: "Hit's a sorry crop all around. The dry weather ruint it. Hit's got no body to it. Hit's the worst I've seen since '31. The wet weather hurt it. The wet weather brought it along too fast."

Frannie Optimistic.

Frannie listens. "If hit's a short crop everywhere, the price will be better," she says.

Sale day. Led and his tribe arrive. He wears his crumpled white panama. His shirt is blue, his trousers gray. He wears no socks. His sons are sun-browned counterparts of himself. Frannie is in a blue rayon dress with flowers on it. Her hat is shiny black straw. Her shoes are white. Sue May, bareheaded and barelegged, is in yellow.

Down the line goes the auctioneer hitching along between the narrow rows, his voice a never-ending singsong, his hand cupped to his ear. The buyers twitch, wink, jerk, and snort, signifying their price. Markers mark each lot.

Word of the price ripples through the house.

"Some's going for 32," ripples the talk. "I seen five baskets marked at 27 . . . mighty little falling below fifteen."

Led takes heart. But smaller prices begin to show on the price tags. He gets worried. As the buyers start down the row his tobacco is on, he tells Frannie:

"If hit don't average 20 I'll tear the ticket up, lug it to another warehouse. I'll be damned if I'm a-going to slave——"

"You hush and wait," she says.

Led doesn't understand the auctioneer's chant. His shirt so wet his ribs show through, sweat coming through the band of his panama, he trails along as the singsong chant sounds above his baskets and moves quickly on. He grabs the tickets. He figures swiftly.

"Hit looks like a 22 average," he says.

"Hit's enough," says Frannie.

"Ledbetter Wilson," the cashier calls to the crowd awaiting their checks 30 minutes later. He steps up and takes the check.

Prosperity in Bloom.

They walked out on the crowded sidewalk into a sea of little boys with ice cream cones stuck in their faces—sons of fathers whose tobacco had sold earlier.

Led, flanked by his two boys, walked in front. "Let us see it, paw," they kept saying. "Let us see the writing where it says $250."

"I'll let you see the cash money in a minute," said Led. "I'm heading right to the Commercial Bank and get a roll of bills in my britches pocket."

They reached the liquor store on the corner. Led hesitated and looked back at Frannie. "I feel sort of like stepping in here a minute after awhile," he said.

Frannie's expression was impassive.

"Do," she said. "And you'll eat no bread at my house tonight."

They passed their car. "That old car is mighty ramshackle," he said. Maybe we ought to—

"Hit'll do awhile," said Frannie. "First thing we do is get in the clear. You cash that check. Then you pay the fertilizer man that $68 you owe him. You hand Mr. Brewer $20 to pay on that mule. Give the bank what you owe them. Stop in at the drugstore and see what your bill is and pay something on it. We bought a sight of medicine when Sue Mae was sick.

"Go see about your bill at Minishes store. Pay for some of them overhalls and fat back we've been gittin'. You've got a lot of stuff accounted against you at the hardware, too. You pay up them debts. We've got to be in shape to make arrangements with them folks again."

Led looked at his check.

Debts Get Most of It.

"Hit'll take mighty nigh all of it," he said, glumly. "I wanted to git some little old rags for you and the younguns. I needed me a pair of shoes, too."

"We got the catalogue at home. We'll pay first, and if they's anything left we'll order off after hit."

Led went in the bank. He came out with the money. He handed Frannie a dollar. He handed the two oldest boys a quarter. He gave Sue May a dime.

"Go over at the drugstore and cool off. I'll make the rounds with this as far as it goes and come git you there."

He looked at the money. "If we'd just had a heavy crop this year as we had last at the price we got, we'd abeen right well off," He said. "Well, maybe next year."

But Frannie and the younguns weren't listening. They had already headed for the drugstore.

Delegates Oppose Adoption of Book-Selling Plan.

After hearing Brigadier General Lewis B. Hershey and electing officers for the forthcoming year members of the Military Order of the Purple Heart concluded their convention with a dance last night at the Atlanta Post No. 1, American Legion clubhouse.

General Hershey, head of selective service, told the wearers of the Heart that time limitations on selective service will severely handicap the country's defense activities, and that selectees should be held in service until the emergency is over.

Members of the order elected Dr. H. B. Weinburgh, of Lansing, Mich., as national commander for the forthcoming year, and Newburgh, N. Y., as their meeting place for 1942.

Bitter Debate.

The Florida delegation withdrew from the national organization, walking off the convention floor when the convention adopted a book-selling plan.

Commander O. B. Carr, of West Palm Beach, and Adjutant Fred E. Leister, of St. Petersburg, led the delegation off the floor after a bitter debate over the book selling plan.

Members of the Florida delegation opposed the book plan on grounds it would commercialize the order.

Others Oppose Plan.

Several members of Atlanta's Old Hickory Chapter of the order and delegates from Wisconsin and Missouri also opposed the plan. Wisconsin and Missouri delegates intimated they will recommend that their states withdraw from the national organization.

After walking off the convention floor, Carr launched plans for an independent organization, and invited all other members of the order who opposed the book plan to join in formation of another national order.

"There is already too much commercialization in veterans' organizations," Carr said.

'Paper Sack' Series Believed Solved

Alec Mims, 17, Negro, of an Auburn avenue hotel, was arrested yesterday by Detectives Leo Nahlik and Harry Williams on suspicion of robbery in connection with a recent series of liquor store robberies.

Detectives Nahlik and Williams said Mims admitted being the "paper sack bandit," who gained that name because, in each alleged holdup, he carried a paper sack with what appeared to be the barrel of a revolver protruding from it.

Mims said, however, the bag contained only a stick carved to resemble a gun barrel. Another Negro, J. R. Fulwood, also was arrested on the same charge as Mims' alleged accomplice. Fulwood, police said, acted as a "look out."

George Wants 'Joint Return' Loss Made Up

Mentions Stiffer Rates, Lower Income Exemptions.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—(AP)—Chairman George, Democrat, Georgia, of the Senate Finance Committee, expressed the view today that an estimated $300,000,000 of revenue eliminated from the new tax bill by house rejection of a requirement for joint income tax returns by married couples should be made up in some other manner.

He mentioned the possibility of stiffening the income tax rates or broadening the base of the income tax through lowering the exemptions. There appeared to be little sentiment for an attempt to revive the joint return provision.

The Senate Finance Committee will begin tomorrow its study of the $3,206,200,000 measure which the house passed yesterday. Public hearings may open Friday with Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau as the first witness if the committee study is completed in time. Otherwise the hearings will start Monday.

Draft Chief Hershey Fears Limit Will Hamstring Army

General Pays Pop Call to City, Holds Parley With Hawkins.

By FRANK DRAKE.

If you want to hamstring an Army, put a limit on the service time of its soldiers, Brigadier General Lewis B. Hershey, director of the national selective service act, declared yesterday during a pop call to Atlanta.

Responsible for directing the system whereby Uncle Sam's Army is being mushroomed to war strength, the general came here yesterday morning to deliver a speech at the national convention of the Military Order of the Purple Heart and to confer with General Sion B. Hawkins, head of the Georgia selective service program.

He paid his respect at the Fourth Corps area headquarters, toured the state selective service headquarters and hopped a train back to Washington yesterday afternoon.

History Lesson.

"If the people of the United States wants to know the result of putting a fixed limit on the service of men in the Army, all they have to do is read history," General Hershey asserted.

He cited the army in Mexico, where soldiers packed up and went home at the end of their year's enlistment, leaving the remainder of the army in a position where it could have been butchered, and another incident during the War Between the States where Pennsylvanians, enlisted for a three-month period, hiked off home even as a battle was begun.

"If they adopt the 18-month extension, we will have all this to go over again," he asserted.

All-Out Aid.

The general is for all-out aid to any country battling Germany. The countries themselves don't matter so much but the important thing "is to get stones thrown at the enemy," he asserted.

"We should look at this thing Frankly," he said. "We are for ourselves first of all. If we can help ourselves by furnishing planes to England, we should do it. Let's not say we are giving planes to England just to help England. We should help any country that can help us."

General Hershey admitted that the selective service system is having plenty of headaches but he declared he thinks operation of the act under the supervision of local draft boards is the best way.

Lack of uniformity in drafting men has been criticized and a central draft control board advocated. The general opposes this.

"The local draft boards know their community problems better than anyone else could nd when the Army needs 20 men, the local board called upon gets quick action and sends up 20 men. If the control was centralized, action would be delayed. Bureaucracy would result," he said.

Draft Problems.

The draft director said officials are "tussling" with the problems of men who are unfit mentally, physically and emotionally for Army duty. More than a quarter of million have been rejected because of some of these three things.

"It is my opinion that other agencies should deal with these men," he declared. "The selective service system can't set up clinics or concentration camps for their rehabilitation. Some local boards have set up clinics in an effort to get the rejected men voluntarily to try to cure their defects. But often the men themselves would rather have the defects."

The general, a native of Angola, Ind., and a veteran of two wars, said he had no solution for this problem but is still "tussling" with it.

Gallup Poll Reveals:

U. S. Favors Draft Extension

By GEORGE GALLUP,
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

PRINCETON, N. J., Aug. 5.—Four sections of the country—New England, middle Atlantic, south and far west—vote in favor of extending the draft training period for longer than one year, while two sections—the east central and west central—vote against it in the final returns of the Institute's survey of public opinion on the issue.

With action in congress expected this week on the draft extension, the Institute reported last Wednesday the preliminary returns of its survey, showing a national vote of 51 per cent in favor, 45 per cent opposed, and 4 per cent no opinion.

Final returns, with all 48 states represented, show the following: "Do you think drafted men should be kept in active service for longer than one year, or should they be released at the end of one year?"

Should be kept	50%
Should be released	45
No opinion	5

If the "no opinion" vote is eliminated, the division of sentiment among those with opinions on the issue is 53 per cent for keeping the draftees, 47 per cent for releasing them.

The returns by geographical sections show sentiment divided as follows:

	Keep	Release	No Opinion
New England and Mid-Atlantic	51%	44%	5%
East Central	39	56	5
West Central	44	52	4
South	63	32	5
Far West	57	36	7

Such opposition as exists to the draft extension does not arise from any lack of public support for the draft system itself.

On the contrary, Institute surveys have shown that more than 90 per cent of the American voters approve the way the draft is being handled. In fact, the public was in favor of conscription many months before the draft act was passed by congress.

Capital Abuzz With Report of Churchill Visit

that time. At Ottawa, Prime Minister Mackenzie King and Malcolm MacDonald, high commissioner to Canada from the United Kingdom, said they knew nothing of a forthcoming conference, and said it was very improbable that Churchill would come to the Western Hemisphere.

From the Potomac came word through the Navy Department that the President had talked over naval matters with Rear Admiral Ernest J. King, commander of the Atlantic fleet, as the yacht moved through North Atlantic waters to an undisclosed destination.

The message said that the President "announced no definite schedule or localities and that weather and angling prospects would determine each day's movement."

Strict secrecy had been ordered on the movements of the yacht and it was said that only government dispatches of the first importance were being relayed to it.

Admiral King's flagship presumably met the Potomac at sea and the admiral boarded the presidential yacht for discussions probably connected with the Atlantic patrol now stretching far out toward Europe and keeping open the lines of communication to Iceland.

The rumors of a Churchill-Roosevelt meeting led to questioning both Secretary of State Hull and Stephen Early, White House press secretary. Early said he knew nothing about such a meeting but referred questioners to the State and Navy Departments.

Hull's Statement.

Hull answered questions by saying that he had talked with the President by telephone Saturday night and that the President mentioned that he was leaving on a cruise.

The London Daily Mail published a dispatch from Washington quoting reports in official circles here that in addition to the Duke of Kent, now in Canada, another high British personage might fly to meet President Roosevelt. Mentioned in this connection in the dispatch were both Churchill and Lord Beaverbrook, British supply minister.

It was believed that only matters of the greatest importance would keep Churchill from participating in the parliamentary debate which was expected to develop some sharp criticism on production and other phases of British policy.

The purpose of a Roosevelt-Churchill meeting, if any were planned, was assumed to be for a discussion of Anglo-American collaboration, possibly with special reference to Japan and the situation in the Pacific.

It was suggested also that the talks of Churchill and Hopkins might have developed some points which the President and prime minister wished to explore more fully in a personal meeting.

Lives Till Priest Comes After 12-Story Plunge

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—(AP)—Dr. F. Justin Lynch, 38, who formerly practiced dentistry at Cleveland, Ohio, was injured fatally today when he fell or jumped from the twelfth floor of the Hotel Taft with an eight-inch pair of scissors embedded in his side.

In full sight of teeming midtown crowds, he landed on the marquee of the adjacent Roxy theater and was still alive when police reached him by climbing a ladder.

"My name is Lynch," he mumbled. "I am a Catholic. Get me a priest."

A priest from St. Malachy's rectory, passing by, administered the rites of the church to the dying man.

Lynch, clad only in shorts, died en route to a hospital.

Tobacco Sale Chant Rolls Through State

Bulk of First Offerings Brings Bids Ranging 20 to 30 Cents.

By The Associated Press.

Bright leaf tobacco growers in Georgia and Florida today counted thousands of dollars realized from sales at public auction at yesterday's opening of the 1941 season, and prepared additional offerings for what was termed in most places "a satisfactory market."

Official estimates on price and poundage were lacking, although marketing specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture said the average opening day price was "much higher for all grades as compared with the opening day last year."

Prices paid ranged from $1 to $41 per hundredweight, said E. D. Booker, marketing expert stationed at Adel, with the bulk of the Tuesday offerings selling at from $15 to $28 per hundred pounds.

Leaf grades were from $4.75 to $9 per hundred higher than last year, he said, while lugs and primings were up from $2 to $8.50.

Millions of Pounds.

Seven of the 15 Georgia markets, Hahira, Baxley, Vidalia, Waycross, Blackshear, Douglas and Statesboro, reported a total of 2,782,000 pounds of the silky, gold-tinted leaf which is used mainly for making cigarettes offered on the opening day. No attempt was made by the marketing official to estimate the total amounts realized in dollars and cents, but the price throughout the belt averaged between the 20-25 cent marks.

Sales Supervisor W. R. Salter at Hahira said 225,000 pounds had been sold up to 3 o'clock. Warehouseman Barnes at Baxley reported 240,000 pounds, and Warehouseman Will Brown at Vidalia 505,000.

At Waycross the unofficial sales total was 260,000, while 550,000 was sold at Blackshear, and approximately 800,000 pounds at Douglas.

Warehouseman R. E. Sheppard at Statesboro gave total sales of 220,000 pounds.

Opening Offerings.

Opening day offerings consisted principally of fine to low quality lugs and primings and fair to low quality leaf, Marketing Specialist Booker, at Adel, said.

"Lugs and primings predominated," he declared, and added that "the general quality was inferior compared to last year, with nondescript and low quality grades prevalent in much larger volume. Sales were fairly heavy in volume although warehouses on some markets were not filled to capacity."

The largest purchases were made by the domestic manufacturers, he said, with all cigaret grades in good demand.

Growers, workmen and visitors crowded the 17 markets to watch the new crop of weed go on sale, piled in broad baskets in long rows in the enormous buildings built for the purpose. They watched the buyers, representing American cigarette manufacturers and other tobacco concerns, assemble around the warehouseman and the auctioneer.

300 Baskets an Hour

Promptly on signal they moved to the first basket. The warehouseman spoke a number—a price to start the bidding—and the auctioneer took it up in a rapid chant intelligible only to himself and the buyers. Down the rows they moved, selling more than 300 baskets an hour and threading the rows until the warehouse floor was cleared.

Growers began collecting cash within a few minutes after the auctioneer began his chant, and other growers began trundling baskets of their tobacco onto the floors for sale later in the week, when their turn at the auctioneer and buyer comes again in rotation.

At Douglas the market hit a top of 54 cents for one basket, 32 at Valdosta, 34 at Tifton, 42 at Waycross. Associated Press reports on the opening day sales by markets included:

Adel: W. T. Shytle found the market stronger with best grades going as high as 38 cents and "growers optimistic over the fine start."

Low of One Cent.

Baxley: Warehouseman Barnes said the bulk of sales ran around 24.62 cents, with some selling up to 35 and other baskets as low as one.

Blackshear: Sales Supervisor Kirk Sutlive announced the bulk of the tobacco sold here in the 23-cent class, but ran as high as 40 and as low as 2 in other grades.

Douglas: With two sales going on here, one warehouse reported sales running near 23.40 and the other near 22.50. The top for the day of 54 cents as bid here.

Hahira: On the first 100,000 pounds sold, Supervisor W. R. Salter announced a range of five to 35 cents and the bulk of sales within 24 and 28 cents.

Hazlehurst: Auctioneer Eugene Simmons said he was finding the bulk of sales around 22 cents, with some baskets going at 32 and others at 6.

Metter: Warehouseman Jeff Hensley said bids were running five to 32 cents here.

Price Comparison.

Moultrie: Grade which sold at 26 and 27 last year were going at 30 to 34 this year, Warehouseman J. E. Ladson Jr. said and grades which sold at 22 a year ago were up to 27 and 29 today.

Nashville: The first 15,000 pounds sold here averaged 20 cents, Sales Supervisor Frank Park Jr. announced.

Pelham: Bids ran from 35 to 8 cents here, with morning sales running near to 23 cents, Warehouseman Claude Russell said.

Statesboro: Warehouseman R. E. Sheppard reported sales running between 2 and 41 cents with much of the leaf going around 22.

Tifton: Two warehouses reported a range from 3 to 35 and most of the offerings going around 22 cents.

Valdosta: The 2-to-32-cent range was indicated for this market on early sales.

Vidalia: Warehouseman Will Brown announced best cigarette types here going at 30-33 cents and the range on the morning round between 3 and 35 cents.

Waycross: Warehouseman L. C. Pruitt said most of the first round here was in the 22-26 range.

15 G.O.P. Heads Join in Attack On 'War Steps'

Landon, Hoover Urge Congress To Prevent Gradual Projection.

ALEXANDRIA BAY, N. Y., Aug. 5.—(AP)—Fifteen Republican leaders, including Alf M. Landon and ex-President Herbert Hoover, joined today in an appeal "that congress put a stop to step-by-step projection of the United States into undeclared war."

A statement, declaring that "naval action," and "military occupation of bases outside the western hemisphere," coupled with "promise of unauthorized aid to Russia" has undermined "fundamental principles of democratic government," was made public by Frank O. Lowden, former Governor of Illinois.

"Recent events raise doubts that this war is a clear-cut issue of liberty and democracy," the statement said. "It is not purely a world conflict between tyranny and freedom. The Anglo-Russian alliance has dissipated that illusion."

Others who signed the statement, released at Lowden's summer camp on an island in the St. Lawrence river, are:

Former Vice President Charles E. Dawes; Irving S. Cobb and Clarence Buddington Kelland, writers; John L. Lewis, former CIO head; Robert M. Hutchins, president of the University of Chicago; Geraldine Farrar, opera singer; Reuben Clark, former United States ambassador to Mexico; Henry P. Fletcher, former Republican national chairman; Ray Lyman Wilbur, former secretary of the interior; Felix Morley, editor and author; Hanford MacNider, former United States minister to Canada, and J. Henry Scattergood, Philadelphia businessman.

discovered that sciatica was caused by pressure on the nerves within the spinal canal and worked out an operation to eliminate that pressure. The Atlanta doctor, performing more than 300 similar operations, improved operating methods, aided in removing chance from diagnosis, wrote articles on the subject and spread knowledge of the new operation in the southeast.

Patients have come from all southeastern states and even as far away as Connecticut for treatment by this Atlanta man.

Not so many years ago lumbago victims seldom were able to work again. That dragging pain in the back made them almost useless as wage earners and many of them lived only from industrial insurance compensation. Now a large percentage are cured by the new operation, others vastly relieved of pain and misery.

Ruptured Cartilage.

It was discovered that most lumbago sufferers had ruptured the cartilage between vertebra of the backbone, and the ruptured cartilage was protruding against and causing pressure and irritation on the nerves which float in the spinal canal.

Where treatment for sciatica had usually been corsets and immobilization, these doctors found which cartilage had been ruptured and cut down into the backbone to find the exact spot. Then they cut the offending cartilage away, removing the cause of the pain.

In most of these operations performed here by the Atlanta doctor during the last four years, pain has been relieved 90 per cent or more, and the patients have usually been able to return to work after a convalescent period.

Other Causes.

Of course, there are other causes of lumbago than ruptured cartilage. Tumors can cause the same condition. There are other things which can cause it, but the mechanism in virtually all cases are the same.

In virtually all sciatica cases the cause of the trouble is between the vertebra nearest the bottom of the spine. It will be in one of two places, between the last two points, both of which can be reached by the same operation.

Largely by the work of the Atlanta doctor and four or five others in the United States ,severe cases of sciatica, or lumbago, which used to be sentences of life without labor, are now curable.

Southern Bell Plea Before NLRB

James A. Branch, Atlanta attorney, yesterday told the National Labor Relations Board in Washington 80 per cent of the employes of the Southern Bell Telephone Company who took part in a referendum several months ago voted for collective bargaining through the independently organized employes' association, and he urged the board not to disestablish the association as a collective bargaining agency.

Lawson Wimberly, a spokesman for the Electrical Workers Union, declared investigation revealed the company dominated the employes' association, and urged the board to order disestablishment.

7 Out of 9 Perish When Truck Stalls in Desert, 1 Slays Self

YUMA, Ariz., Aug. 5.—(AP)—A desert shortcut over "The Highway of the Devil" took the lives of seven members of a party of nine—one by suicide induced by watching his companions suffer the tortures of thirst and 100-degree heat.

Francisco Arvallo, a produce peddler, came upon the victims today as he drove over the Sonora desert road known to Mexicans as "El Camino del Diablo." Two survivors were brought to a hospital here. The condition of one was critical.

Sheriff T. H. Newman said the party's truck became stalled in sand probably five days ago on the return trip to Brawley, Cal., from a visit in Santa Ana, Sonora.

Rafael Cornejo, despairing of his life and unwilling to suffer longer, wrote a note of identification, then slashed his throat.

The car's radiator was empty. The water either had boiled out or had been drained to drink.

British Ready For Thai Move To Stop Japan

recognition, it appeared that whatever concession Thailand had in fact made was offset by creation of the Battambang base.

U. S. Attitude Key.

Delayed Bangkok advices stated that Thailand's final course depended greatly on the attitude secondarily of Britain and primarily of the United States.

The size of new British and Imperial troops arriving during the day in Singapore, which already had been heavily strengthened, was of course not disclosed.

However, the contingent included both British and Indian troops and skilled engineers and technicians, said the official announcement, and arrived in a big convoy which had put out originally from a northwestern port in the United Kingdom, picking up large numbers of Indian troops at Bombay.

A British decision to move ahead of any Japanese encroachment in Thailand was represented by informed persons as the logical outcome of a determination, backed by the United States, to halt the Japanese advance which already has put the whole of French Indo-China under Japan's control.

Informed persons declared that Britain's emergency plans were for the seizure of Bangkok and the ports of the Kra Isthmus, which in Japanese hands would cut Singapore off from the Asiatic mainland.

Burma Border Reinforced.

Such a British advance probably would come from the western Burma border, where British air bases have been reinforced. Imperial troops already have been moved by the thousands to Thailand's border with British Malaya and are equipped with tanks, artillery and special weapons for jungle warfare.

These additional reports, all pointing to a crisis in the Orient, were distributed through the Far East:

That a big Chinese army is concentrated on the China border with British Burma, ready to aid the British in defense of the Burma military supply road.

That Thailand armies were standing on the country's southern borders with British Malaya.

That Japanese troops were arriving in large numbers in Dairen, the port of entry to Manchoukuo, presumably to reinforce Japanese forces standing along the Siberian border with Russia.

(A Chinese diplomatic informant in London declared that events in Thailand were moving toward "a swift and terrible climax."

(Authoritative British quarters declined comment on reports that a British naval flotilla, including the battleship Warspite, had been seen recently in the Gulf of Siam.)

Cruisers Significant.

Perhaps to emphasize upon Japan the seriousness of American opposition to the Japanese drive southward, the two American heavy cruisers appeared unexpectedly in Australian waters.

The Navy called it a "training cruise," but that bit of diplomatic understatement deceived no one. It is a familiar practice for the nations to reinforce their diplomacy with strategic naval or troop movements for officially stated innocuous purposes.

Last March during another period of tense Japanese-American relations an American naval squadron was sent to Australia on what was denominated a training cruise. It consisted of two cruisers and five destroyers. A smaller force of destroyers was sent to New Zealand at the same time.

The department's disclosure of the move was terse:

"The Navy Department announced today," it read, "that two heavy cruisers, the Northampton and the Salt Lake City, Rear Admiral S. A. Taffinder, U. S. Navy, commanding the detachment, while on a training cruise to the south Pacific ocean, have put in to Brisbane, Australia, for refueling and several days recreation for the personnel of the ships' companies."

Racial Action Viewed.

Meanwhile, in Tokyo the newspaper Hochi said Japan is engaged in a "co-operative defense" of Asiatics against the white race.

Japan's advance into southern French Indo-China, where she established military bases, was just the first step in this "co-operative" action against the white race, Hochi said. This newspaper declared that the continued dominance of Asiatic colonies by European powers had ruined the livelihood of Asiatics; that co-defense was now necessary for Asiatic security.

The militarist organ Kokumin, in the same vein, warned Thailand to accept Japanese military protection as had Indo-China.

"Japan," said Kokumin, "is greatly concerned over the position of Thailand because, like Indo-China, she is placed under the merciless pressure of the United States, Britain and Chungking, so much so that her national security is threatened.

"For her security, sovereignty and territorial integrity, Indo-China concluded a joint defense agreement with Japan. Thailand should draw the moral from this development."

With the Far Eastern crisis no better, the government doubled war risk marine insurance rates and placed new restrictions on the use of gasoline. Service by gasoline-powered cars on 38 Japanese railway lines will be suspended Sunday to save fuel, more alcohol is to be mixed with gasoline, rationing of heavy oil and gasoline is to become more strict, and for the first time kerosene and light machine oil are to be rationed.

In another move to counteract the stoppage of United States oil supplies, the government is consolidating refineries for more efficient operation and plans to establish an oil control association.

(In Shanghai Lieutenant Colonel Kunio Akiyama, official spokesman for the Japanese forces in China, said that a minor clash of Japanese and Soviet border troops occurred about two weeks ago near Manchuli, which lies just inside the Manchoukuo border with Siberia on the trans-Siberian railway. Japan was said to be moving reinforcements for her troops along the Siberian border, and Dairen, Japanese port of entry for Manchoukuo, lying in the Kwantung leased territory, was reported to be virtually an armed camp. Large Japanese troop forces, heavy artillery and large supply shipments were reported constantly moving through the streets of the port.)

Neutral Switzerland Feels Heavy War Cost

BERN—(Correspondence of the Associated Press)—Although it is not fighting and has no intention to fight unless attacked, Switzerland is beginning to count the cost of the war to herself in billions of francs of actual cash outlay.

President Philip Wetter told parliament recently that, if the costs of keeping the Swiss army partly mobilized and on guard at the borders continued in 1941 at the same rate as 1940, the country would have a mobilization debt of 2,500,000,000 francs ($581,000,000). That's an average of more than $100 for each of Switzerland's 4,000,000 people.

U.S. Wears Out Bills To Reveal Why They Do

Machine Simulates Ordinary Handling of Money, But Quicker.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—(NANA)—A money-spending machine has been set up at the United States Bureau of Standards. The purpose is to find out why Uncle Sam's dollar bills wear out.

Replacing worn-out paper currency costs the federal government several million dollars each year. Previous Bureau of Standards researchers on paper have resulted in large savings but, it is suspected, bills now are being put to harder usage. They pass from hand to hand more frequently. They are folded more often to fit different sizes of pocketbooks. The only solution is stronger paper—stronger under the actual conditions to which bills are subjected. This requires a quick laboratory wear-test that will simulate the kind of treatment paper currency gets in circulation.

Frederick T. Carson and Vernon Worthington, the bureau announces, have developed a wear-test that will meet this need. The test is made in two stages. First, a square of paper is crumpled to a certain volume by means of a piston working in a cylinder. Then mechanical fingers straighten and smooth the paper. A mechanism rolls it up and puts it in the cylinder again. Then it is crumpled once more. This is repeated many times until the paper looks and feels like currency that has been in circulation for several months, although the artificial working process requires only a few minutes.

The process is automatic and at the end of a specified amount of treatment the crumpling apparatus stops. In the second stage of the test the amount of damage that has resulted from the treatment is determined. Strength and stiffness sometimes are measured, but the most valuable criterion has been found to be the rate at which air will flow through the paper under a given pressure. This shows how much the structure has been opened. This, in turn, is related closely to the roughness or fuzziness of the surface, its ability to catch dirt and absorb oil or grease, and the probability of impairment of printed images or characters on the paper.

Brunswick Power To Be Stepped Up

The Georgia Power Company announced yesterday expansion of steam generation facilities at Brunswick, Ga.

Two plants now operating at Brunswick, the company said, have a combined output of 4,500 kilowatts. The addition will give a total of 8,500 kilowatts.

The plant being expanded is one formerly operated by the Atlantic Refining Company, and since acquired by the Power Company. Officials here estimated construction would be completed by November. The plant previously had an output of 1,500 kilowatts.

Japan To Salvage Ships For Needed Scrap Iron

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—(AP)—Cut off from her American supply of scrap iron, Japan has turned to the ocean to get this essential munitions product, sources here said today, reporting that Japanese salvage firms had begun operations to raise shipwrecks in waters under Japanese control.

Listed as a possible source of 15,000 tons of metal is the $8,000,000 American liner, President Hoover, which grounded on Hoishito Island, near Formosa, on November 12, 1937. Japan already has taken about 7,000 tons from the wreck.

Peace Named To Byrnes' Senate Seat

Greenville Publisher Is Second Appointment Within Two Weeks.

COLUMBIA, S. C., Aug. 5.—(UP)—Roger C. Peace, publisher of the Greenville News and Greenville Piedmont, today was appointed to the United States senate for the interim until the unexpired term of James F. Byrnes is filled by a special election September 30.

Governor Burnet Maybank, a candidate for the senatorial post, appointed Peace to succeed Alva Moore Lumpkin, who died in Washington 10 days after he became senator for the period until the post could be filled by the election.

Peace is 42, married and the father of two children. He was born in Greenville, was graduated from Furman University and served in the United States armed forces during the World War. He reportedly planned to leave Greenville for Washington tomorrow night and intended to take the oath of office Thursday.

Peace never was a candidate for public office, but had been active in organization of Young Democratic Clubs and governmental affairs.

Maybank said it was "for the best interests of the state that we have a senator in Washington to support the President's policies during the next few weeks."

Peace's term will expire October 15, or sooner if the one elected September 30 can qualify in less than two weeks. Byrnes resigned from the senate to accept appointment to the United States supreme court.

Wickard Urged To Peg Peanuts At $100 a Ton

George, Russell, Pace Confer With Secretary of Agriculture.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—(AP)—Secretary Wickard was urged today to place a floor of $100 a ton under the price of peanuts.

He received this appeal from Senators George and Russell, of Georgia; Senator Bankhead, of Alabama, and Representative Pace, of Georgia.

After a conference with the secretary, the congressional group said he declined to make any promise but took the proposal under advisement. They expected a decision in a few days.

Pace said they asked the secretary to peg the farmer's return by fixing a $100 diversion price. Under this program, the Agriculture Department seeks to divert surplus peanuts away from the normal channels of trade and into other uses, notably crushing for oil. The diversion is a pegging device, as is the crop loan on less perishable agricultural commodities.

Mandatory loans of 85 per cent of parity have been ordered by congress for basic agricultural commodities. Pace said he and the senators told Wickard that peanuts should be given the same treatment because their production is controlled in much the same way as that of the basic commodities.

U. S. Probing Road Bureau After Firings

Wilburn Rehires Three 'Simply Because They Are Good Men.'

By The Associated Press.

A representative of the Federal Public Roads Administration conferred with Highway Department officials yesterday to determine whether the state has retained a sufficient number of engineers to merit continued federal aid for road-building projects.

Meanwhile, Highway Board Chairman W. E. Wilburn said that three employes in the division of highway planning who were dismissed last week had been rehired. He added that this had not been done at the insistence of the federal government or under threat of loss of federal aid funds, but simply because the employes were "good men—key men—whom we found we could use."

The three were among 39 employes dismissed from the Highway Department last week after the Governor announced the road agency had too many job-holders —"too many who can't work." The administrative saving, he said, would be applied to awarding state road-building contracts to the counties.

The employes in the planning division who returned to work today are Alfred J. Bender Jr., assistant engineer in charge of traffic; B. C. Hoffman, traffic recorder, and Robert M. Penland Jr., statistician. In the department's current quarterly budget, not yet approved by the Governor, the salary listed for Bender is $160 a month and traveling expenses of $100, for Hoffman, $100 a month and traveling expenses of $175, and for Penland, $145 a month.

Wilburn said one or two others might be rehired.

The federal official, who asked that his name be withheld, was at the Highway Department yesterday and said he had conferred with Wilburn about the reductions in the department's personnel.

He declined to say whether the federal government had played any part in having the three planning division employes returned to work, although he pointed out this staff had been sharply reduced before. He also cited other curtailments of personnel and said the federal government was interested in seeing that the state had sufficient engineers to assure that any federal aid projects would be carried out properly.

ATLANTA, GA., AUGUST 6, 1941.

Worth the Cost

The house of representatives at Washington has voted overwhelmingly for a new tax measure which will, if passed by the senate, demand from every citizen of this country tax payments far larger than ever dreamed in the past.

Income taxes, under the new bill, will take from every man and woman of average income three or four times as much as ever before. The man who, last year, paid less than $100 will, next year, have to dig down for $300 or more. Other increases in luxury taxes, in so-called "invisible" taxes will drain further contributions from every pocket.

But no one in America will object. No one, that is, in his right mind. For that which we purchase with these taxes is so immesurably valuable it cannot be computed in dollars and cents. It is something for which, if it became necessary, any American would give his all.

For it is the American way of life. It is those principles of freedom and independence upon which this nation was founded. It is the right of Americans to live under a government of their own choosing, the right of Americans to control, by their untrammeled votes, their own society.

No man, when disease endagers the life of his loved ones, hesitates to enlist every force to battle that disease, because of cost. No man, when his house is on fire, counts the cost of saving his belongings from the flames.

Today there is, in the world, an immeasurably evil force which threatens this country. The totalitarian powers, joined together, have dared to threaten, to make demands, to violate the rights of this country. Everyone of us who knows anything of the world, knows that if Hitler and his associates, Mussolini and the rulers of Japan, are victorious, there will be no such thing as the freedom we have known, for America. A Hitler triumphant could, and would, work his evil will upon our own country. Either through economic power, through military force, or both, he could bend us to his will and make the people of America as much the slaves of a ruthless Germany as are the peoples of Poland and Norway and all the occupied lands today.

Our government, however, is rapidly creating a national defense so strong that no power on all the earth can crack it. We are building an Army and Navy and an air force so strong we shall hold the decision in the world conflict in our hands.

To build such an armed force is costly. We recognize that. We know that it is only from the pockets of the people that the cost of the guns and ships and tanks and planes and shells and bombs can come.

But, when we contemplate that which these armed forces are created to defend, we welcome the opportunity to pay for them. We are proud that it falls upon us to contribute our part to such a cause, no matter how heavy that party may be.

For today there is, throughout all America, a reawakening of that ancient American spirit which the founding fathers embodied in the closing phrase of the Declaration of Independence. To the cause of freedom we all, gladly and proudly, dedicate our lives, our fortunes and our sacred honor.

What matters taxes for such a cause?

By cutting the output of refrigerators and washing machines, Leon Henderson may move the whole process of icing the beer back to the bathtub.

Lovely Ladies, Anyway

With the exception of those employes of silk hosiery mills who may be temporarily incommoded through loss of employment, the ban on silk as an American textile will work no real hardship on the American people. There is an ample supply of other fibers which, while not possessing that ancient aura of luxury that surrounds the very word, silk, nevertheless can fill every need quite capably.

Greatest publicity emphasis seems to have been placed upon the coming lack of silk hosiery for women. Well, the loss won't be noticeable, what with nylon, rayon, processed cotton, etc. And already a large proportion of our younger feminine groups wear cotton anklets, anyway.

If American industry cannot produce hose from cotton that shall be indistinguishable from silk, American ingenuity has been overrated.

And, as final assurance, let every American woman know that she shall suffer no loss in the admiration of her men folks merely because her ankles, calves and knees do not glisten in covering of silk. Ladies, we assure you, we would consider you charming in gingham and worsted, were these your sole modes of attire. It would take much more than a simple ban on silken hose to make the average American woman anything less than beautiful.

Having folded the road map the wrong way, Marshal Petain invites his unhappy compatriots to follow him on the "road to honor."

Merit System

It is fortunate that state welfare officials have decided to go ahead with the establishment of a merit system in the State Welfare Department on the basis of examinations given last fall under the administration of former Governor Rivers.

For a time it seemed that many employes who passed the written examinations last November would be discriminated against because of a change of administration. The federal government frowned on this idea, however, and forced the state department to come to its terms, as was evidenced by an announcement from J. A. Boatright, supervisor of examinations.

Boatright said performance tests would be conducted August 9 for stenographers and typists who passed last year's written tests. These examinations will be held at Atlanta, Macon, Savannah, Columbus, Augusta, Rome, Dublin, Athens, Waycross and Albany.

At the same time Boatright said ratings will be issued soon for job applicants who passed the November examinations. Ratings never were issued on tests taken during the closing days of the Rivers administration because Governor Talmadge strongly indicated he would scrap the work already accomplished and start all over again.

It is hoped that this tendency on the part of Georgia welfare officials to co-operate with the national administration will in the future eliminate the holding up of federal funds to the Welfare Department each month. This has been necessary during the last few months because of Georgia's refusal to follow the dictates of the Social Security Board.

Such a practice has only produced anxiety for the thousands of pensioners in the state who thought that their pensions might be stopped entirely. The State Welfare Department can render the aged, blind and crippled of Georgia a real service by following the rules of the Social Security Board so long as they are not discriminatory against this state.

The Bureau of Minor Research is to count the turning points in the war, to see how they compare with corners in a depression.

Peanut Prowess

The lowly Georgia peanut really should have a press agent.

Scientists and food experts work themselves up into a dither over the nutritive values of Vitamins 1, 2, 3, 4 and X, Y, Z, but who ever comes forth to extoll the healthful qualities of the peanut—the insignificant goober?

T. A. Pickett, associate chemist and research specialist at the Georgia Experiment Station in Griffin, has proven an exception. In a report filed with the State Board of Regents Pickett comes right out and recommends the eating of Georgia peanuts for good health.

Did you know that peanuts contain not only large amounts of phosphorus, necessary for the building of bone and teeth; potassium, essential for normal growth, and sulphur, which is vital for formation of body proteins, but also calcium, copper and iron?

Not only that, but few of the common foods, says Pickett, are as rich in B-1, the anti-neuritic vitamin, as raw peanuts. They also are rich in the G or B-2 vitamin, which is important in growth and general good health, and are one of the best natural sources for nicotinic acid, the pellagra-preventative factor.

After hearing such evidence on Georgia peanuts, one would feel positively unhealthy unless he had them constantly on hand for munching purposes. And why not grow healthy on genuine Georgia products?

Georgia Editors Say:

WEEKLY PRESS AGAINST TALMADGE

(From The Calhoun Times)

The weekly press of the state seems to be almost solidly against Governor Talmadge for his juggling of the Board of Regents in order to get a verdict of guilty against Dean Cocking and Dr. Pittman. I have noted only five papers supporting Talmadge in the affair. Of this five, one is edited by one of the new appointees on the Board of Regents, three are published by men who hold fine printing contracts under the Talmadge administration, and one is published by a man recently appointed to a city court judgeship by Talmadge. I do not mean to say that these publishers are not sincere, or that their action is influenced by patronage; I do not like to think that of any newspaper. But these are the facts.

WASHINGTON PARADE

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS

DEMAND FOR BRITISH OFFENSIVE WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—Despite pressure from Moscow and the flood of unchallenged reports on British plans for launching an invasion against German-occupied regions of Europe, some of the best-informed military opinion in Washington holds that there is little likelihood of such an undertaking being attempted at this time.

Widespread demands have been voiced in both London and Moscow for the British to take the offensive while the Germans are tied up on the Russian front. The Russians are naturally desirous of seeing this done as a means of diverting a large part of the Nazi army now employed against them. Segments of the British press have been hammering the theme on the idea that it offers an opportunity that may not come again.

It has been known in military circles here for some time that the British for many months have been rehearsing a large number of divisions, reportedly 40, for offensive landing operations against the Germans. With a naval superiority the Nazis never had, the British presumably have all the transports and other equipment necessary to lay down such a force in one of a half dozen spots in Europe.

Equally important now, for the first time since the war started, they apparently have gained mastery of the air in the west, thanks to the diversion of the Nazi air force to the Russian front.

But as encouraging as these factors are for the success of a counterinvasion, our own military experts believe that nothing of the kind is in prospect unless and until the Russians stabilize a war front in the eastern zone. To do therwise, it is insisted, would be to court worse disaster than the evacuation of Dunkirk.

UNWISE AT THIS TIME In order to constitute a real threat against the Germans, enough to force Hitler to shift any considerable part of his divisions from the Russian sphere, the British would have to be prepared to land an invading army of several hundred thousand or a million men—an operation that cannot be accomplished overnight even under peacetime conditions.

If the Russian resistance happened to collapse about the time the British succeeded in landing their men, Hitler's hordes now engaged in Russia would be freed to turn against the British. Thus greatly outnumbered, the best the British could hope for would be another Dunkirk, multiplied several fold.

There may be a few sorties here and there, quick thrusts against German-occupied areas under the protection of British naval guns, but our military experts who stay closely informed on the situation say that anything more ambitious than this would be foolhardy.

Moreover, the British, having gone through the Dunkirk saga and the lesser similar evacuation of Greece later, cannot afford to risk another such undertaking. National prestige and the exigencies of the situation demand that they hold their forces intact until opportunity gives more clear-cut prospects of success.

WHAT THEY MAY DO In lieu of any wholesale invasion attempt yet, what military circles here expect more is a series of rapid coastal raids by the British against channel and Scandinavian ports. These would serve the purpose of feeling out weak spots, stimulating uprisings against Hitler in occupied countries, and forcing the German command to hold large troop concentrations on the western front against the threat of the operations being expanded.

More recent reports from London and Scandinavian countries indicate the possibility of operations of the kind being launched against Finland, where a juncture could be established with the Russian forces now battling the Germans there. Obviously, however, no great force could be placed there at this time because of the uncertainty of events. Once the Russian front is stabilized, anything might happen.

A cue to the type of active aid the British may be expected to give the Russians is suggested in the latest mass air attacks on Berlin, which, according to the cable dispatches out of London, saw a fleet of 200 to 300 bombers make the largest raid of the war against the German capital.

Constant bombing of Berlin and other Nazi cities by the British would force the Germans to send back an important part of their Russian-engaged air force to meet the attack. The manner in which air attacks on the British have been relaxed since the Russian campaign started has indicated to some of our military observers that the Germans did not have all of the air reserves credited to them earlier.

Bombing of Berlin would not only serve a military purpose in forcing the Germans to divert a part of their air force from Russia, but would be highly destructive to German morale while things are not going the way the people were told they would go in Russia. Also it would have a stimulating affect on morale in Moscow, whose people would get some consolation, little though it may be, from the knowledge that their tormentors from Berlin were not being allowed to escape a similar fate.

Our best-informed military circles make this sort of appraisal of Britain's future line of action as against the more spectacular suggestion of a full-fledged invasion attempt.

ANOTHER CASH CROP ESTABLISHED FOR GEORGIA FARMERS

Editor, Constitution: The Georgia Co-operative Grape and Cherry Growers, Winder, Ga., Barrow county, with members in other counties, are now well organized for marketing their products.

Our vineyards are fine, and regardless of the terrible drought, we have through our most able leader, E. L. Love, of Decatur, Ga., sold a nice crop of grapes at a profitable price. We should net over $100 per acre this year, and our vineyards are not fully matured, being only three years old.

Aceording to our authority, Mr. Love, our vineyards should produce profitably for a period of 70 to 100 years, properly sprayed, and maintained.

From now on we should be glad to supply Georgia stores with fresh, nicely packed, ripe grapes of such varieties as Ives, Catawba, Iona, Deleware, Niagara, and Concords, all of which are grown here in Georgia, are finer flavored than the grapes they are now selling, which are from California.

We think that in the interest of all the people of Georgia, that during our harvesting period, the stores should sell only Georgia-grown grapes, which we will furnish them so the consumer will not be overcharged.

J. D. WATSON, Pres.
Winder, Ga.

TO ESTABLISH GEORGIA AS THE PEACH STATE.

Editor Constitution: Having ridden up and down the beautiful highways of Georgia throughout the peach orchards, and observed such a marvelous crop of peaches on the way; then with a pang of regret, reading that the price of peaches is constantly falling, I have been constrained to wonder if something couldn't be done.

Not being a "Georgia Cracker," not being a peach grower, but a temporary resident of the city of Atlanta and a staunch admirer of Georgia, its people, its peaches and its other marvelous resources, I offer a suggestion. That every newspaper ad (except classified ads), every radio program and every window display in the state of Georgia, contain some slogan admonishing the people to "eat more peaches."

It is my candid opinion this would help the situation extensively. It would further establish the fact that Georgia is a peach state, and that its people believe so strongly in this fact, they are willing to back their belief by consuming more and more of this marvelous Georgia product.

In the state of Wisconsin, which is a great cheese-producing state, no meal can be served in a public place in that state unless there is cheese in some form or other, included in the meal. This seems to be only a patriotic duty to one's state. I cannot see for the life of me, why such a program could not be instituted in the state of Georgia.

It is noted with a great deal of pleasure that General Frink, the Quartermaster of the Fourth Corps Area, is instituting a movement to put peaches on the menus of the several camps in the state instead of other fruits. This, in my opinion, is a step in the right direction, and is a step which should at least be matched by the people of Georgia and the firms in Georgia.

M. A. STEPHENS.

FORMER GEORGIANS RESENT VIOLATION

Editor, Constitution: Because we feel that your newspaper is one of the three in Georgia still holding to the policy of freedom of the press, we bring to your attention the editorial of the New York Herald Tribune.

This is only one of the many articles and comments which have appeared recently in current issues of New York papers and magazines. It shows the kind of publicity Georgia is getting. As former citizens of Georgia we are indignant that such violations of the principles of democracy should be exercised in our country.

If the voting citizens of Georgia were made aware of the seriousness of what is taking place in their own state it is impossible to believe they would allow such fascistic practices to continue.

FINE RESPONSE TO DEFENSE BONDS.

Editor Constitution: The very fine co-operation you have given to promote the sale of Defense Bonds and stamps is greatly appreciated.

You will, I know, be interested to learn that the response has been exceedingly gratifying and I am confident that these securities will continue to be sold in increasing amounts as the emergency continues. I am certain that much of the success which is being had is due to the help your organization have rendered. On behalf of everyone in any way officially connected with this patriotic effort, as well as for myself personally, I thank you.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Watchful Eye WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—It should not be necessary for Americans to view with the cold eye of the fly-cop any action or attitude of the American government, but a combination of past performances and present circumstances makes it advisable to watch more closely now than ever before the relationship between this administration and the Communists and their fellow-travelers. Never hostile to Muscovites, the Roosevelt presidency has even fought for them at home to the extent of attempting to discredit the Dies Committee in its persistent if sometimes bunglesome revelations, and the wife of the President has flatly declared a tolerance for their mischievous younger set, at least, which Harold Ickes certainly would forbid as treason if the brats were Hitlerites, instead.

But it has been not only the noisy adolescents, schooled in the perfidy of the Kremlin and practiced in the arts of obsteperous political and social action, who have encountered sympathy and understanding in Washington and in the web of federal outposts which the New Deal has woven through the country. Adult bolos have crept into the federal employ in the guise of liberals in such numbers and positions as would bring Mr. Ickes shrieking to his microphones if they were Nazis and it cannot be forgotten that each disclosure of individual taint has been denounced as reaction, Red-baiting and servility to the money-changers of Wall street.

Bad Enough That established condition was bad enough and seemed likely to be abated if not wholly cured when the Moscow dictatorship threw in with Hitler in a treaty which was the actual signal of the start of the present war. Some American party members and fellow-travelers lost their balance and fell off the sled as it whipped around this abrupt turn in the party line and, for the first time since Comrade Stalin gave his solemn and worthless promise not to mess in the internal business of this nation, in return for recognition by the American government, the national administration seemed disillusioned.

The Communists at last appeared to be the low and callous crooks that our Red-baiters had always said they were and Robert Jackson, waiting for a vacancy on the Supreme Court, issued from the office of the Attorney General two denunciations of Muscovite activity in the U. S. A. which must have pained him as much as them.

But since Hitler attacked Russia, and we have found ourselves on the same squad, so to speak, the United States being not yet a full member of the varsity in the game against Adolf, there has been a sharp change. By the generous permission of the Communists, we are to be spared further Communist interference with defense construction and production—a decision taken in the interests of Russia primarily and only incidentally in the interests of the American republic.

The same anti-Americans who were sabotaging the defense of the United States, none of whom, incidentally, has been or ever will be published for this treason, instantly perceived that this was no longer an important war on Britain's behalf but democracy's own struggle to exist and the motto "The Yanks Are Not Coming" was amended to read "The Yanks are not coming too late."

Takes the Heat Off This new situation obviously takes much heat off the Communists and, remembering how very welcome they had been before the slight chill that set in with the start of the war, it must be suspected that they will now be more welcome than they ever were. It is idle to hope that with so many Communists and sympathizers with Communism already emplaced in agencies of the federal government, and with co-operating warming into something like alliance betwcen Washington and Moscow, there will be a house-cleaning or delousing.

But the resistance should be maintained out in the country and the Dies Committee's disclosures, however sensational they may be, should not be ignored or discounted on the mere ground that they are sensational. This committee is, after all, a committee of congress and the administration's opposition to the inquiry must be regarded as its reaction to the committee's prodding in sensitive areas.

It surely will have been noticed that there has been no hostility to the committee's revelations of Nazi and Fascist activity which, on the contrary, have been exploited as cause for anger and alarm, as indeed they are.

A sensible rule would be to consider whether Mr. Ickes, for instance, denounces Communist infiltration and Mrs. Roosevelt's association with Communists and fellow-travelers as furiously as he loathes Hitlerism and Charles Lindbergh's popularity with American Nazis and Fascists. That is a reliable way to call the turn on Ickes and the administration. It is unfortunate that such skepticism must exist and unity suffers from it, but the fault is not in the skepticism. The fault is in the facts, the policy and the sympathy which make them skeptical.

Air Legion Formed.

Patriots of Brazil are organizing an air legion and the movement is spreading throughout the country, many young aviation enthusiasts expressing a desire to join. Salathiel S. deBarros, a banker of Rio Grande do Sul, is among the leaders and recently flew to Rio de Janeiro to obtain the backing of the ministry of Aeronautics.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH McGILL.

TWO CHINESE STORIES We had finished dinner and were having coffee and this man who had been to China and who was very close to the Chinese government was talking.

"Japan will never beat them," he said. "Never. If the Japanese move farther as they now are moving they will block the Burma road."

"That will beat the Chinese?"

"No, it will inconvenience the Chinese. It will not defeat them. They will not be defeated, I tell you.

"I can tell you two stories that will illustrate what I mean. When the Japanese took industrial China, near the coast, they took over two new factories, both of which had cost about $2,000,000. One was a nitrate plant. The other was a textile mill.

"When the Chinese saw it was inevitable they did not destroy the plants. They went through both of them and took away some of the machinery. The Chinese do not like to destroy wealth.

"They just took away a little piece here and a little piece there. It was two years before the frantic Japanese got the textile mill going. The haven't got the nitrate plant going yet. Or, they didn't have six months ago. Perhaps now they have.

"The Japanese sent an official to the American company which had built the nitrate plant and which held the patents. It was asked to send over engineers and mechanics who could put it in running order. The firm had dealt with the Chinese for years. The head of the firm looked this Jap in the eye and said:

"'We do not deal with thieves. You stole the factory. It is your job.' And then he rang a buzzer, and when the girl answered it he pointed to the Jap and said, 'Show him the door.'

250 TONS, 3,000 MILES "I can tell you one of the great stories of the war," he said, "one that has never been published.

"The Chinese wanted to build a nitrate plant far back in the mountains. The same Chinese engineer, a graduate of the finest schools in England, had built the one the Japs took. He began work on this one. I just left him in Washington.

"They had to have one great compressor. The nitrate is taken from the air. The compressor was one casting. It weighed 250 tons. Remember now, a freight car carries about 25 tons.

"To get it to their new factory they had to land it on the Chinese coast, transport it through occupied territory and carry it a distance of 3,000 miles into the mountains.

"They got it to the coast and got it unloaded. Then they made a sort of cradle for it. It couldn't be cut and put back together. It had to stay in one piece, 250 tons of it. They built this cradle and then they got the Chinese. They found out how much a Chinaman could carry and they got that many Chinamen."

(I was suddenly conscious that all of us in the room were leaning forward, the coffee growing cold in the cups. Everyone knew what he was about to say, yet could not believe the sheer, bone-sweating drama of it.)

"They carried it?" someone asked

"Yes," he said, "they carried it."

(I know I felt my own scalp tingle and the blood ran faster through my body. I wanted to cheer.)

"They carried it. Hundreds of them got under it and carried it. They carried it by night most of the time through occupied territory. Hundreds of men and 250 tons of metal are difficult to hide. But they got through.

"They carried that 250 tons the full 3,000 miles, a lot of it over mountain trails. But they got it there. Today the compressor is in place and the factory is at work turning out nitrate."

"CURIOUS WAR" "It is a curious war," he said. "The Japanese haven't won anything yet. Some of the battles have been won without firing a shot.

"We will suppose the Japanese start an advance. Perhaps the Chinese have not enough men and not enough guns. So, they say, 'Very well, advance.' The Japanese advance.

"Then things begin to happen. The water got poisoned. The lines of supply were harassed. Snipers fired into the camp by day.

"By night the Chinese simply made noise. They patiently, painstakingly, made a lot of noise. The Japanese soldiers couldn't sleep.

"On the advance positions the Japanese soldier does not last more than six months. Then they have to be replaced. Very often the Chinese catch some of them who have gone crazy, wandering around outside their camp.

"Pretty soon the advance position becomes too expensive. The Japanese go back to their base. The Chinese have won again. Without guns, without tanks, without men, the Chinese manage to win. What was supposed to be one of the finest armies in the world has bogged down for four years trying to beat an army that had nothing.

"They build a workable airport in a day. They keep the Burma road open wtihout scrapes or machines. They do it by hand. They float tanks across rivers without bridges of any kind.

"They are a great people, the Chinese. I very much wish we could help them more. They will suffer more if the Burma road is closed. But it will not defeat them. They are going to win. When this thing finally is done, Japan will be a second-rate power. All because their people let their war lords sell them a bill of goods. They can't beat the Chinese."

You May Think Junior Wrong To Fight and Still Hate to See Him Get Licked

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

In a land of free speech, extremes of conflicting opinion are almost inevitable. A Pepper opposes a Wheeler; a Willkie opposes a Lindbergh.

But in all the fog and storm of debate, there remains one clear and steadfast light that gives assurance of safety.

Differ as we may and do, we are all loyal to America. Whatever else we may say or do, all of us, when the test comes, will stand together to defend and save our country.

Consider, then, the situation we now face—not a theory or debatable plan, but a set of established facts.

American forces have occupied Iceland, and American ships patrol the Atlantic with orders to sink German ships that oppose them.

Our troops are in British Guiana.

On the Pacific side, we are strengthening our forces in Alaska and the Philippines and giving military aid to China.

We have pledged our support to Russia, and our ships are carrying weapons to the British and Free French in Africa and the Near East.

Gentlemen may cry "Peace! Peace!" but the obvious and inescapable fact is that we have stuck our necks out.

Right or wrong, for good or ill, our government has committed our country to a course from which there is no withdrawal except in surrender.

Surely there can be no argument about this. Any person who is able and willing to read or listen to the radio should know the truth.

Therefore we have but one question yet to answer. Having challenged the Axis powers, and sent our forces to the war zone, and invited retaliation by enemy forces, shall we give our fighting men the best possible equipment and training and back them to the limit, or shall we require them to risk battle without training, without sufficient weapons, and without assurance of adequate reserves of men and tools?

At present we are doing, in complacent indifference, what the British did of desperate necessity. We are risking a fight without giving our men a fair chance to win.

Whatever our differences, surely we can be American enough and manly enough to support the men we draft to defend us. We aren't doing it now, and we can't until our leaders forget votes and "business as usual."

OFF THE RECORD—By Ed Reed

Peaches and Cream Are Wonderful—But Nine Times a Day?

It's all ill wind that blows nobody good, if we may believe the adage, and while all of us are sincerely sorry the peach growers and shippers had such a blow when "the bottom fell out of the market", one cannot help rejoicing, from the buyer's standpoint, at the plentiful supply of peaches at prices within the reach of practically everybody.

But my personal elation is getting frazzled around the edges—because of peaches and cream.

That delicacy came up as a topic several months ago and I was foolish enough to remark that never in my life had I had enough peaches and cream.

I didn't mean I'd never had enough at one time—but in a season. I've almost shed tears along in the fall because I hadn't consumed more peaches when I could get 'em. For many a year, too, I regretted I hadn't eaten more watermelon.

But for the past week my rural domicile has been knee deep in peaches and I think my highly-paid housekeeper placed an order for an extra quart of cream per diem. I'll know when the dairy bill comes in.

I suppose there's nothing more delicious than peaches and cream—if the peaches are ripe and sweet, as they are this season. We've been getting peaches pretty enough for an artist to paint and as luscious as a fricassee of peacock's tongues is reputed to be, though I cannot testify from personal experience.

We have had peaches and cream for before breakfast and at breakfast and for an afternoon snack and for dinner and before bedtime. I heard the Mistress of the Manor moving about in the kitchen at 3 a. m. Sunday. I heard the door of the refrigerator slam.

In Wee Small Hours

"I'll bet she's fixing me a big bowl of peaches and cream," I said to myself, "just to prevent my starving before daylight." So I turned over and pretended I was asleep. I don't know yet what she was doing up at 3 a. m. unless she was chasing a moth with a flyswatter. I've often given thanks that it doesn't require a baseball bat to slay a moth or a housefly, because they delight on alighting on the slightly thin spot on top of my head. And a woman, playing Diana the Huntress, hits 'em where she sees 'em—or tries to. She may miss 'em, but she hits where they were.

Anyway, I find that peaches and cream have begun to lose some of their fascination for me. I am sure that if a group of scientists locked me in a laboratory room for 30 days and gave me my choice of just one type of food I'd not pick peaches and cream. I might choose corn beef hash or hot biscuits and chicken cream gravy or tender steak with French fried onions. Or fried ham cut from the left hind leg of a peanut-fed razorback. But it wouldn't be peaches and cream. Not just now. If the experiment were to begin along in November I might. But not today or tomorrow.

Perhaps it's because our kitchen and back porch breakfast room are too full of peaches. Whenever I penetrate to those regions I think I'm in a canning factory. In fact, I am. The Mistress of the Manor has peeled, stewed, boiled —and fried, for all I know—enough peaches to stand a six-month siege. And put them into glass jars against a long, hard winter with foodstuffs rationed.

She suggested I might help peel the peaches. Ugh, ugh, ugh!, as our noble red men are said to have remarked. My fingers are allergic to the fuzz on peaches. I hate to touch 'em. I've seen otherwise normal people bite right into a fuzzy peach and my soul shriveled up and cold chills ran up and down my backbone and I shuddered until my small change fell out of my pants pocket and my sock garters loosened up and slid down over my heels. I'd as soon caress a couple of sting nettles in a bouquet of poison ivy. If I had starved for 11 days and was admitted to a peach orchard I'd keep on starving—unless somebody with a sharp knife came along to peel my share of the peaches. I'm just that way. Sir Isaac Newton couldn't stand a cat in the room. Michael Angelo—or maybe it was Leonardo—fainted at the aroma of oranges—or perhaps it was pineapples. The point I am trying to make is that many great genuises of ancient and modern history have had their foibles. For the benefit of my biographers I hereby state that I can't bear peach fuzz—to touch, taste, bite into or think about. Oh gee, will somebody give me a lemon to bite? Or a fat onion?

Relief in Sight

Perhaps the peach diet wouldn't be so bad if I didn't have to finish the cream in the bottom of the bowl. Not that I object to cream, but after a pint of sliced peaches?

My household dictator says if she ever again catches me feeding that cream to the dog she'll go see her lawyer. If she has a lawyer I haven't met him, knowingly. But I think I'd have a defense. Surely cream is good for a dog—in reasonable quantities. When flavored with peach juice. My dog has occasional nightmares and hallucinations. He wakes up at night with a fierce desire to repel the lions and tigers which infest the back yard. I am sure he needs the vitamins and calories and doohinkies contained in nice, rich cream.

It is true that cream is expensive. But this is a darned expensive dog. He has chewed up seven dollars' worth of automobile cushions and gnawed the leg off a chair which once ornamented the palace of Louis XIV, if one can believe the junk dealer who permitted us to acquire it. And who could doubt an honest tradesman with a soul above subterfuge?

But I have hope. One of our daughters, who lives in Milwaukee for the silly reason her husband has a good job there, arrived last night for a visit. I am sure she hasn't had enough A-1 Georgia peaches this year to fill an eyedropper. So I'm going to be generous. I am going to say: "Honeychile," (she will expect that because she wants to freshen up her southern dialect, which goes over big in Milwaukee) "take my sheer of them there peaches and cream and fill yo'self up. If you will excuse me I'll just have some bacon and eggs."

BIG MARCH, LITTLE MUSIC—The sound of marching feet is little more than a series of dull thuds for a soldier if there isn't a rousing tune to march to. Most of the boys in the Fort McPherson reception center band have no instruments, and are seeking the public's help in alleviating the shortage. The band is shown marching while a doleful tune is attempted by three Georgians, left to right, Herbert Wilson, Atlanta; Horace Elrod, Byromville, and Hallfred Williams, Atlanta. They hope to have a fully equipped band soon.

Henry Grady Business Study Body Is Urged

Martin Suggests Group To Meet Industrial Problems of South.

Boyce Ficklen Martin, dean of the Emory School of Business Administration, in an address to Atlanta Kiwanis Club yesterday, proposed that southern businessmen unite in a "Henry Grady Foundation" and present a united front in meeting the problem of southern industry, both under the pressure of national defense demands and in the readjustment which he said must inevitably take place following the war.

He said that Henry W. Grady was "the father of southern industrial development and the original promoter of the natural resources of the south" and that it was, therefore, logical to name such a businessman's group in honor of Grady.

Must Have Leadership.

"Business leadership must be maintained to preserve the capitalistic system and the American way as we know it. . . . If the businessmen of the south don't take the leadership in solving their own problems and protecting their own interests, then, just as in 1932, we may expect that government administration will."

He cited three major problems which will face the south at the conclusion of the war: (1) Agriculture will not be able to regain its export trade in cotton or tobacco. (2) Industry will be [illegible] with a great depression. (3) Army camps, which occasioned more than 50 per cent of the defense spending in the south, will be deserted.

To Make Survey.

In appealing for a solid front of southern industrial leaders, Martin declared: "We southerners know what it is to fight to the last resources for our beliefs. We must fight for the present, but we must also sacrifice and fight for the future."

Dean Martin will become actively connected with the national defense program of the government August 11 when he will begin a tour of the fifth civil service district in search of economics, industrial specialists, and accountants to fill positions, temporary and permanent, in the national defense program. He will visit the principal southern cities during the last two weeks of August.

Women's Club To Stage Dance For Band Fund

Proceeds of August 19 Event Will Go to McPherson Center.

It's nothing new when a band plays so that people can dance.

But when people decide to dance so that a band can play, that becomes news—and very good news for 30 soldier-musicians at the Fort McPherson reception center.

They comprise a band without instruments. They have a bright new bandstand, an experienced director and plenty of talent—but no instruments.

Yesterday, however, gloom showed signs of lifting and hope again sprang eternal in the human breast.

The Atlanta Woman's Club announced it will sponsor a mammoth dance at the city auditorium August 19, and all proceeds will go to the reception center band fund.

Mrs. Mary Griffith Dobbs, chairman of the dance committee, also announced the club will obtain an orchestra for the occasion without charge and brand-new instruments at wholesale price through the Polk Music Company.

The dance will last from 9 until 12 o'clock and Hay Mayfield will furnish the music.

The Governor, the mayor and other public officials will be invited and it will be a gala occasion, members of the Woman's Club, headed by Mrs. Howard Pattillo, promised.

Meanwhile, instruments and money had been coming in to The Constitution, which is handling contributions in the drive to obtain pieces for the band.

Yesterday the total donations were:

R. A. Christopher $1.00
J. D. Campbell 1.25
A. band friend 5.00
Stoddard Dry Cleaners ..... drum, trombone
United Loan Company three horns
Colonel Jack Taylor ..... two horns
Herman A. Davis Jr. ..... cornet

Send your contributions of money or instruments to The Reception Center Band, care of The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.

POSTAL RECEIPTS GAIN.

More Stations Join 'Blackout' In City, State

Fewer Non-Compliers Reported Than on Sunday Night.

More and more Atlanta and Georgia filling stations are joining in the voluntary "blackout" at 7 o'clock each night, Jimmy Robinson, president of the Georgia Association of Petroleum Dealers, declared yesterday, while in Washington Secretary Ickes was reported to be closely watching gasoline sales figures to determine if mandatory rationing will be necessary.

"Fewer violators were reported open last night than Sunday night," Robinson asserted.

He added every filling station operator ought to co-operate in every way possible during this emergency to avoid enforced rationing.

Secretary Ickes said general results from the first Sunday night blackout in 17 states and the District of Columbia had proved "very satisfying" but that complete reports of sales were lacking and therefore the actual result is not known.

Reports on filling stations which refused to comply with his request for the "seven to seven" reduction in hours will be "followed up," the secretary asserted.

Ickes has called for a one-third reduction of gasoline consumption because of the emergency in transportation facilities.

Workers Sought To Share $10,000

If you are a southern paper mill worker who formerly worked for a Vermont pulpwood company, you may have some money coming to you.

J. R. McLeod, regional director of the wage and hour division of the department of labor, has been asked by the Boston office of the division to locate workers who were formerly employed by Johnston & Son and Ager & Co., of Arlington, Vt.

Employes who worked for these firms in 1939 and 1940 have shares in a total of $10,000, wage and hour restitution, which the companies are paying as the difference between what their workers were paid and what they were due under the fair labor standards act.

Hearing Scheduled Here On Mill Pay Deductions

A hearing on problems of deductions from textile industry employes for housing and purchases at company-owned stores will be held at the Henry Grady hotel Monday.

Representatives of the textile industry, the textile unions and representatives of the wage and hour division will participate. Harold Stein, assistant director of the hearings branch, wage and hour division, called the meeting and an earlier one to be held in Columbia, S. C., Friday.

Army To Spend $185,000 on 2 Repair Shops

Camp Wheeler, Croft Projects Will Include Oil Houses.

Authorization for the spending of $185,450 for motor repair shops at Camp Wheeler, Ga., and Camp Croft, S. C., was announced yesterday by the office of the Quartermaster of the Fourth Corps Area.

Two motor repair shops, an oil house, a grease rack and a wash rack will be built at each of the two camps.

Quartermaster Corps maintenance of Army vehicles is handled progressively through four echelons for different types of repairs. First echelon repairs include such items as checking tires and batteries, which can be handled by the drivers of the vehicles. Second echelon is handled at the local motor park by mechanics—perhaps a carburetor adjustment or clogged gas line and includes repairs requiring no replacement of parts.

Third echelon repairs include the replacement of minor parts and may be made at stationary repair shops—such as are going to be constructed at Camp Wheeler and Camp Croft—or at the rolling machine shops (trucks) equipped with considerable heavy repair facilities. Fourth, echelon, demanding motor overhauls or other major repairs, functions at motor maintenance depots. The latter are authorized for all camps with strengths of more than 30,000.

Polio Forum To Open Today At Grady Unit

Health Officers, Nurses To Study Preventative Methods Here.

Forums, where latest methods of caring for polio victims and preventing spread of the disease, are to be discussed, will be held today and tomorrow at Grady hospital for doctors, public health nurses and health officers of northwest and northeast Georgia, it was announced yesterday.

Similar meetings were conducted Monday and Tuesday for Fulton and DeKalb counties, and others will be held throughout the state during August through the combined efforts of the Georgia State Chapter of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, the State Health Department, and the crippled children's division of the State Welfare Department.

This new war against polio came as 16 additional cases, eight of them "old" cases but hitherto unreported, brought Georgia's total number of victims to 337.

Two of the new cases were in Atlanta and three others were recorded in the rural section of Fulton county.

Catoosa, Cobb and Jenkins counties also have one new case each. "Old" cases were listed from Chatham, Dodge and Haralson, with one each, and Muscogee, with five.

Services of Dr. Robert Bennett, director of the post graduate school of physical therapy at the Warm Springs Foundation, and Miss Norma Pfrimmer, acting consultant on orthopedic nursing for the National Organization of Public Health Nurses, are being made available for these forums by the Georgia State Chapter of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

In addition to the study groups meeting in Atlanta, forums will be held at Warm Springs, August 8; Swainsboro, August 11; Savannah, August 12 and 13; Waycross, August 14, and Albany, August 15.

To Lead Discussions.

Dr. Bennett and Mrs. Pfrimmer will lead discussions on early care for polio cases and methods of preventing spread of infantile paralysis.

Officials of the Georgia chapter of the national foundation yesterday estimated that 90 per cent of the victims of polio in Georgia are being aided by money Georgians contributed last January when the President's birthday was nationally celebrated. Half of this fund raised them remains in the state for purchase of splints, frames, special shoes and for providing orthopedic consultation and orthopedic nursing. The other half is used by the national foundation for research and epidemic aid.

Good Morning

By LOUIE D NEWTON.

THE HUS ANNIVERSARY.

The 526th anniversary of the death of Jan Hus, burned at the stake in 1415, for his religious convictions, has been more widely observed this year than at any time since the valiant martyr to religious liberty summoned the people of Czechoslovakia to assert their belief in the right and competency of the individual soul to deal directly with God. Indeed, one may go further and say that Hus rendered an equally vital and lasting service to the entire Christian world by his courageous and compelling preaching in the Chapel of Bethlehem in Prague, for which testimony he was burned to death.

A memorial service in honor of the Czech religious leader on the 526th anniversary of his death was held in Westminster Central Hall, London, on July 6, 1941. A message was broadcast to the Christian world on that evening by the Dean of St. Paul's. On the same day a pamphlet entitled: "The Soul of Czechoslovakia," by the Dean of Chichester, was distributed. A copy of this revealing pamphlet may be had by addressing the Anglo-Czechoslovak Christian Fellowship, 2 Great Peter street, London, S. W. I.

Increasing interest in the martyrdom of Jan Hus is manifest throughout Britain and America in this hour when the struggle for freedm is accentuated by the coalition of the totalitarian powers of the world. We will do well to open our histories to the shining passages which record the story of Hus. Two years ago the Archbishop of York recommended that the Czechoslovak religious leader and national hero should be remembered in all Anglican parishes, and from that suggestion has spread the world-wide revival of appreciation of his cherished martyrdom.

Jan Hus was an apostle of a new age in which a morally earnest and intellectually honest apprehension of Christian faith would be regarded as the indisputable presupposition of religious vitality. Although the Czech reformer achieved high distinctions both in his ecclesiastical and university career, he influenced his contemporaries most powerfully through his fervent evangelistic preaching in the Chapel of Bethlehem.

An eloquent messenger of the act of grace brought to mankind through the Incarnation of Divine love in Jesus Christ, Hus looms ever greater as one of history's chief prophets. A model of integrity, there was no discrepancy between his teaching and his everyday practice. Even his bitter enemies did not dare to express doubts about his personal life. Filled with indignation when he observed the decadent level of the mediaeval church, Hus desired to remain a faithful Catholic. At the same time he was convinced of the authority of the Holy Scriptures, whose guidance he valued more highly than the dictates of ecclesiastical authority, which was, moreover, divided in its own counsels. His desire for righteousness was connected with a thirst for resonableness of Christian beliefs, for which conviction he was put to death, July 6, 1415.

German Convoy Raided By British Blenheims

LONDON, Aug. 5.—(AP)—British Blenheim bombers scored hits on a 2,000-ton German vessel in a morning attack on a German convoy off the Dutch coast today and hit three Nazi patrol boats in an afternoon attack off the German coast, the air ministry announced tonight.

The attacks on Nazi shipping were parts of aerial offensives carried out over the channel and northern France, where an airdrome was bombed and several planes on the ground damaged.

One British fighter was lost.

Libby Company Shares Offered

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—(AP)—Liquidation of remaining Swift & Company holdings of Libby, McNeill & Libby was effected today with a public offering of 1,500,000 shares of the Libby Company at $5.62 1-2 a share.

The selling was in the hands of an underwriting group of nation-wide scope headed by Glore, Forgan & Company.

Acquired by the underwriters from Swift & Company, the stock is a part of 3,018,639 shares of Libby—around 83 per cent of the outstanding stock—owned by Swift & Company on last January 1. Early in the year 1,518,639 shares were distributed by a similar underwriting syndicate.

Divestment of the shares by Swift was in accordance with a consent decree entered in the U. S. district court for the District of Columbia in July, 1933, under which Swift in effect was enjoined from owning any capital stock of Libby.

CHICAGO, Aug. 5.—(AP)—An abrupt last-minute rally in wheat futures gave a better closing tone to the market today, especially for the deferred deliveries which finished about unchanged to a shade better than the previous close. The nearby delivery, however was off almost a half cent. Prices of virtually all futures were considerably lower than yesterday throughout most of the session.

Corn was unable to make any headway and rye, soybeans and lard closed with net losses for the day.

Final quotations were ½ cent off to ⅛ cent up for wheat. Corn was ¼-½ down. Oats ⅛ off to ¼ higher; soybeans ¾-1¼ down; rye 1¼-1½ lower and lard declined 12½-17½ cents per 100 pounds.

The Secret of the Marshbanks

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

Cherry Visits the Marshbanks' Home Before Taking Her New Position

INSTALLMENT III.

It had once been a sufficiently stark and comfortless regime. But times were changed now. Mother Superior was noted for her modernity of her views. Her girls, she said, must presently face the world as it was—with all its harry of planes and cars, its noise and progress. Old-fashioned hemming and the practice of scales must give way to arts more immediately useful; Saint Dorothea's girls with languages and music must study secretarial work, domestic science—yes and beauty parlor methods too, and voice training for radio. And if they wanted to try their hands at movie scenarios or compete for national advertising prizes, let them go ahead!

"Old girls" were 20, found employment under "responsible custody" in the unknown world, and disappeared; new girls came in, small and frightened and homesick even from the most unfit and wetched of homes, or rebellious and angry and full of muttered threats of escape.

And gradually the convent routine, the business and reasonableness of convent days cheered the desolate and tamed the insubordinate, and they were only girls together—girls who were allowed to curl their hair and even to use a little powder, but strictly forbidden lipstick and rouge, forbidden cigarets, entirely ignorant of cocktails; girls who never had danced or flirted even upon the most innocent terms, who knew nothing of house parties, night clubs, the crowded bleachers at the big ball games, the packed grandstands at the races, the thrill of speeding cars; girls whose reading was carefully watched, who never saw a newspaper, whose attendance upon the radio was carefully checked.

And yet they did know something of all these forbidden and outlawed things, these orderly young creatures in their black pleated uniforms, embellished by the prim organdy collars and cuffs that they laundered themselves in the inconvenient, outdated old laundry. When they could, they murmured of Broadway's newest songs and Harlem's newest dance steps, of Hollywood's love affairs and the marriages of heiresses, of Reno and the Riviera and Palm Beach. While they studied French verbs and wrote essays entitled "My Ambition," they knew well that mankind, and especially man, was their real study, and that marriage was their real and only ambition. Every girl at Saint Dorothea's of the age of 14 or older knew just where she intended to spend her honeymoon, and several of them were quite definite on the subject of tallness, broadness, profession, temperament in a prospective husband.

So that Cherry, formally discharged from the bookes as "Charlotte Rawlings," with due details of her admission and her 13 years' residence at the convent entered upon a formidable-looking graph, was not as entirely unprepared for entrance into the world as her custodians might have fancied her to be.

At leaving, Cherry wore the convent uniform of black serge and white collar, and a round hat like a small black basket turned upside down. The hat dated back some 10 years, but it was a hat, and that was all that girls from Saint Dorothea's expected of headgear. Her coat was a stout black-dyed garment that had come to the convent with a truckful of other clothes when Mrs. Peter Walsh had been suddenly widowed.

Black cotton gloves, black lisle stockings, black laced shoes, a black purse with her handkerchief and $10 in it, and a creased black patent-leather suitcase stuffed to bursting, and worn gray at the cracks and the corners, completed her outfit. But Cherry's youth and eagerness did something even for this dingy equipment, and her waved silky hair, which had so bewildering a variety of shades of gold and tan and brown in it, framed a radiant face.

Mother Superior had given her the $10 with a parting word of instruction. This money was for any emergency; her tickets and meals on the train would be paid for by the sisters in whose care she was traveling.

"Meals on the train!" Cherry had thought, unable to hear the gentle little farewell homily for several minutes because of the sheer excitement the mere thought gave her. "Meals on the train!"

"Sister Fabian is always sick when she travels, and Sister Gervase is going down for medical treatment," Mother Superior had said; "but our good friend Dr. O'Connor will be on the train, and he will take care of you in the dining car. Now, Cherry . . ."

Much had followed about character, and resort to prayer. Cherry must face any humiliations or disappointments in her new life bravely; life was a long test of the human soul. We did not know why; we saw now as through a glass darkly; it must be enough for us to take whatever was sent resignedly . . .

To all this Cherry, in outward aspect all respectful interest, had paid but a vague attention. But presently her wandering thoughts had been suddenly attracted to a more personal note in Mother Superior' remarks.

"This wouldn't have been my choice of a school for you, Cherry," the nun had said. "I've been considering in my own mind whether I ought to say this much to you," she added, "and I've asked for guidance in the matter. But there seems to be no harm in telling you that I felt—and dear Mother Bertrand felt, thirteen years ago—that you should have been one of the Victor street girls. Our school here is for cases that are underprivileged—for girls who are definitely unfortunate, perhaps through no fault of their own. However, the servant—your mother's servant, who brought you here—was very definite that it had been her wish to put you with us. Mrs. Haskell—Emma—you remember her? You will see her now—had known a fine woman who became one of Saint Dorothea's Sisters, and through her she knew exactly the character of our work."

"I remember Emma," Cherry had stammered, almost faint with this final excitement. There had not been any especial stigma attached to her name then; she might have been one of the Victor street girls! She had fixed widened eyes, in a paling face, upon Mother Superior. But disappointingly, there had seemed to be nothing more to add to this. The nun had merely made her a parting gift of special medals that had been blessed in Rome, and had taken her downstairs for final farewells.

Sister Fabian and Sister Gervase were both indisposed on the train. They did not want any supper; they had the three berths made up immediately, and Cherry left them to the little room, found a window seat in the empty length of the car and sat, fascinated, watching the landscape flying by.

She jumped when old Dr. O'Connor touched her arm, realized that she was hungry, went with him through the swaying train to the dining car and was so rapt over its light and warmth and the bewildering obligation of ordering something from a menu for the first time in her life that tea and biscuits and honey were all she could murmur when her companion poised his pencil over the order blank.

Both little nuns were tucked up in bed when she cautiously entered the drawing room. Cherry had the lounge, and slept the sleep of youth and fatigue within its narrow boundaries. Breakfast was another adventure—such smoking coffee, such buttered toast!—and the long day that dragged for almost everyone else on board was too short for her.

But at a quarter past seven o'clock—for the train was late—when they descended somewhat grimly and jaded at the Oakland Mole, sheer nervous excitement and expectation had exhausted her. She was pale, too much absorbed in her own emotions to notice the effect of her hat and her luggage upon the Marshbanks' handsome young French chauffeur. He was quickly identified by the wearied Sisters, and Cherry in her turn identified the nice, middle-aged maid who had accompanied him. The nuns went their way, and Cherry, looking from the windows of the magnificent car, saw for the first time the diamond arch of the great bridge, the further tiara of the Golden Gate span rising above the dark, troubled waters of the bay, and San Francisco's towered hills silhouetted against a somber and angry west.

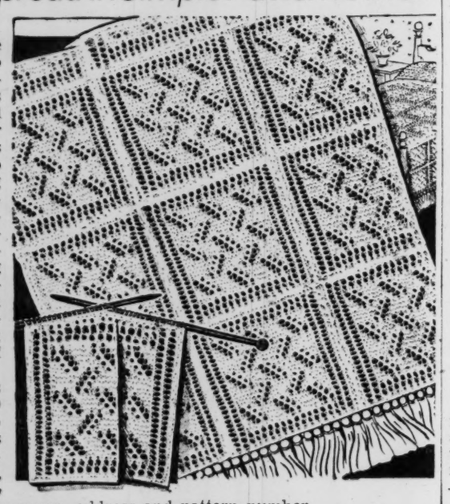

May, the housemaid, who had been sent to meet her, was really, Cherry discovered, a Mrs. Mott who had two almost grown boys. But she was "May" to the whole household, she said goodhumoredly, and Miss Cherry had better call her so.

"I'm not going to live at the Marshbanks," Cherry told her. "I'm going to take a position."

"The judge said you'd be with us only a few days. He is going to play bridge somewhere tonight, and he's having his dinner at seven. Mrs. Marshbanks and Miss Amy are going out to dinner before a party, and he's to bring them home dear knows when. It's a coming-out party for Miss Patsy Randall."

Budd Hulick and Benay Venuta received surprise gifts this week in the form of colored caricatures of themselves, prepared and sent in by a fan of their NBC-Red Network "Quizzer Baseball" series. So pleased were Budd and Benay that the caricatures have been mounted permanently on the huge scoreboard in the studio which is used to score "runs," "hits," and "outs" in the novel question-and-answer series.

Bond Booster Barry Wood and Al Goodman's orchestra will take care of the rest of the show, which is presented each Wednesday night over the Columbia Network and WGST at 8 o'clock.

In the interest of national defense, the program stresses the need for funds to build up the United States armed forces through the sale of government bonds. All talent on these shows is voluntary. Even the radio time was donated by an oil company which formerly occupied this spot.

QUIZ KIDS' PARENTS FACE MIKE TONIGHT

A group of grown-ups will revert to their "second childhood" tonight when the parents of the famous "Quiz Kids" will stammer and stutter the answers to the questions fired by Chief Quizzer Joe Kelley at 7 o'clock over WAGA. The Kids will have the pleasure of picking the questions which will be asked their mamas and papas.

This show, which will give the brilliant youngsters a brief "vacation" from the airwaves, promises to be a very interesting one as the parents are pretty well acquainted with math, political goings-on and other subjects which draw many a querry.

House Approves Requisitioning Of Equipment for Army, Navy

Senate Hits Snag on Length of Draft Extension; Deferment for Persons 28 and Over Sent to White House for Signature.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—(AP)—Legislation authorizing the President to requisition military or naval equipment, supplies, munitions or machinery considered necessary for national defense was passed by the house today and returned to the senate for action on amendments. The vote was 241 to 136.

Just compensation would have to be paid before any property could be acquired. Opponents contended that the bill was another version of plant seizure authorization twice voted down overwhelmingly by the house when it was included in legislation to defer men of 28 from the draft.

An amendment was adopted prohibiting removal of machinery or equipment necessary to a plant actually in operation and this apparently satisfied a number of critics of the legislation.

Aside from this change and a couple of minor amendments the measure conformed to similar legislation previously passed by the senate.

Meanwhile, with a majority of the senate apparently favoring an extension of service for all men now in army uniforms, a dispute developed as to whether this additional duty should be 12 or 18 months.

Both Majority Leader Barkley Democrat, Kentucky, and Senator Thomas, Democrat, Utah, told an attentive senate, crowded with gallery visitors, that they expected passage of the bill permitting the President to keep the men in service 18 months after their original one year of training.

Earlier the administration forces had beaten the attempt of Senator Taft, Republican, Ohio, to limit the additional service for drafted men to six months, and for Army Reserves and the National Guard to one year. The vote was 50 to 27.

"28" Bill Passes.

Late in the afternon the senate interrupted debate to complete congressional action on legislation granting mandatory deferment to draftees who were 28 years old on or prior to last July 1. The measure also provides that, consistent with national defense requirements, the Secretary of War shall release men 28 years old and above who already are in training.

Senator Tydings, Democrat, Maryland, told the senate that the War Department planned release of National Guardsmen 28 years and older on the same basis as selectees.

Originally the senate had attached plant seizure provisions to this measure, in an effort to end national defense stoppages arising from strikes, but these provisions were eliminated from the bill finally sent to the White House for expected approval of President Roosevelt.

Taft Protests.

During debate on the service extension measure, Taft had protested that congress should "keep its obligations to the draftees" who generally believed they must serve for only one year, and asked why with millions of men registered for the draft "only 600,000 or 800,000 should bear all the burden."

Barkley told the senate that an 18-month limitation had been agreed upon to eliminate complaints of some persons that youths "might fear they were in the Army for life."

"When this emergency ends there is not enough power in Christendom to prevent congress from turning these boys loose," Barkley said, adding that meanwhile the "emergency is increasing each day."

Then Barkley struck out at Hitler, saying he was responsible for the present emergency.

Barkley Is Concerned.

"Except for the madness, the machinations, the brutality of one man, we would not have passed a selective service act and we would not have appropriated nearly $40,000,000,000," the senate leader said. He added that if aggressors succeeded in Europe, Asia, and Africa, he was greatly concerned about "what happens to the north and south of us."

Barkley continued that regardless of their views as to the forms of government, the vast majority of Americans "hope Russia will defeat Hitler."

The Army IN GEORGIA

"Sunstroke? Nope, Army rumors got him!"

The largest movement of tanks in the history of the United States Army will begin August 12 and be completed August 13, under direction of the Fourth Corps Area quartermaster, when the Second Armored Division stationed at Fort Benning will be transported by rail to the Louisiana maneuver area.

The tank movement will require 355 flat cars, each loaded with two tanks. In addition there will be 88 coach cars, kitchen cars and baggage cars for the transportation of 2,728 officers and men and their impediments.

The total weight of the tanks to be moved is 7,547 tons or 15,094,000 pounds. It will require 13 trains to move the division. Five trains will leave Fort Benning August 12, between the hours of 4 a. m. and 9:45 a. m. and eight trains will leave August 13 between the hours of 4 a. m. and 7 a. m.

It will cost the Fourth Corps Area quartermaster $250,000 to take the tanks to the maneuver area and return them to Fort Benning.

PRIVATE ENTERS ARMY VIA ROUND ABOUT ROUTE

CAMP CALLAN, Cal., Aug. 5.—Private Clifford E. Withdrow entered the Army via a rather roundabout route.

He registered for the draft in Cedar Rapids, Iowa, received his questionnaire in Gallup, N. M., and took his physical examination in Atlanta, Ga. He got his notice in Northampton, Mass., reported in his home town, Springfield, Ohio, and was inducted at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind., and came to this California post.

That, in the opinion of some of the boys, makes him the all-American selectee.

SOLDIERS "LEARY" OF REVIVING YOO-HOO

FORT BLISS, Tex., Aug. 5.—A 63rd Coast Artillery column pulled over to the side of a road. A group of soldiers was perched on the back of a truck and engaged in commonplace conversation when a cheerful feminine voice interrupted with something which sounded like yoo-hoo.

The troopers stared. The silence was as heavy and cold as an iceberg.

"Well," the young lady asked in exasperation, "has the cat got your tongue?"

One of the men cleared his throat and rejoined:

"Listen, little girl, haven't you read the papers?"

FEW SMALL WEAPONS SMASH TANK ATTACK

FORT JACKSON, S. C., Aug. 5. A few small weapons—plus American ingenuity—can smash a tank attack.

A non-combatant battalion of the 105th Ordnance Company was mending equipment back of the lines during mock warfare. Suddenly three enemy tanks rumbled into view.

Captain Carter Reeves realized the six rifles on hand would have no effect on the metal monsters. So he ordered his men to use smoke pots and tear gas.

The hell buggies roared into a blinding cloud of smoke. Tank No. 1 rammed a huge tree and stuck fast. Tank No. 2 climbed up the back of Tank No. 1 The crews were captured.

Tank No. 3 wandered in the haze until the driver asked the way back to his base. The Ordnance boys obliged by sending him off—in the wrong direction.

Nazis Reported Admitting Flop Of 'Blitzkrieg'

Soviet Tank Armor Called Too Tough for German Guns.

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—(AP)—NBC said in a broadcast tonight from Ankara, Turkey, that a recently arrived pro-German diplomat brought word from Berlin that the German general staff admits it badly underestimated the striking power of Russia's armored divisions and the efficiency of the Soviet command.

The NBC correspondent said the diplomat told him the Nazi general staff acknowledged its blitzkrieg plan had gone awry and that the Russian Panzer defense had played havoc with the Nazi forces.

The correspondent said he was told that German antitank guns could not pierce the heavily armored Soviet tanks and that German munitions plants are busy turning out heavier armor-piercing shells.

Nevertheless, the Germans were represented as still confident of ultimate victory but declining to discuss the possibility of the war lasting into the winter.

Anne Noble's Favorite Hobby Expressed in Wedding Gifts

By SALLY FORTH.

● ● ● FOR SEVERAL YEARS Anne Noble has been collecting beautiful pieces of sparkling cutglass as her favorite hobby. Cutglass, as you know, reached its most fashionable vogue back "when mother was a girl," for some reason or other being shoved into the background with the progress of time. The result is that, while not rare, private china cabinets and antique shops by no means are overflowing with collectors' pieces.

Even so, Anne has been given a number of pieces as wedding gifts, and they will occupy a prominent place in the home in which she will preside as hostess following her marriage to William Hardie Naff on Saturday.

Her fiance's mother, Mrs. William T. Naff Jr., has given her an exquisite cutglass fruit dish. And from her aunt, Mrs. V. H. Taliferro, of Eatonton, she has received a handsome pitcher that has been in the latter's family for a number of years.

Another piece Anne will treasure through the years to come is the beautiful vase that belonged to her paternal grandmother, the late Mrs. George Noble Sr. The bride-elect's mother, Mrs. Rogers Noble, is having it made into a charming lamp for her daughter.

The future bride, by the way, is planning to be married in traditional white, and her veil and the coronet to which it will be attached will constitute the "something borrowed" in her attire.

The veil is being loaned to her by the former Katherine Barnwell King, who wore it when she recently became the bride of James Minter. The coronet is being borrowed from Anne's cousin, Mrs. Robert Lorton, the former Beverly Rogers, whose father, Harold O. Rogers, will give his niece in marriage on Saturday.

● ● ● DEAS HAMILTON is another popular bride-elect who is receiving a number of handsome wedding presents prior to her marriage to Joseph Hale on August 22. But just about the most exciting of their possessions is not a gift, but the brand-new house they have purchased on Gladstone street near the Bobby Jones golf course.

Constructed of white-painted brick, it is attractively designed with brown shutters and a green roof. And Deas already has decided upon the color schemes for each room and begun to collect permanent objects for their decoration.

It was this charming future abode that inspired the table decoration for the shower given for Deas last evening by Anna McConneghey at her home on Morningside drive. An exact replica of the house, the miniature counterpart even boasted a driveway with a toy automobile parked at the door, tiny shrubs landscaped in duplicate arrangement of the real ones, and a small signpost bearing the name of the street. Even the number of the house was in its proper place over the front door.

Anna, whose ingenuity as a hostess is well known, remembered even the most minute detail. But the real stroke of her genius was expressed in the tiny groom carrying his miniature bride over the threshold in traditional romantic fashion!

Nor did the hostess' cleverness stop with this. She and Deas, you know, are members of the Chi Omega sorority, the guests having included only sister members of this organization. All of which provided the keynote for the party's color scheme.

Cardinal and straw, the sorority colors, were carried out in the floral decorations throughout the reception rooms, in the calla lily placecards, and in the refreshments. The final touch was the use of the sorority emblem as the decoration on the individual cakes served with the dessert!

● ● ● AFTER the reception following the marriage of Margaret Merts and Roy Workman, the guests waited, hopefully, on the lawn, rice in hand, for the couple to attempt a "getaway." And somehow, even though Roy had had his car painted a bright blue for disguise, the cat had gotten out of the bag! A member of the wedding party had blocked Leon and Cat Jones' car, in which the bride and groom were to be whisked away, and it couldn't be moved!

Minutes passed, and finally, when the newlyweds appeared, everyone raced to the Joneses car—with the exception of the bride and groom! They accompanied Judd and Lucia Ewing Valentine, and five or six cars took off after them. In fact, the "motorcade" was in such a hurry that it was stopped by the cops! Of course, the officers detained the car carrying the bride and groom, but after much conversation, Lucia Valentine finally convinced them that it was a "worthy cause" to be getting the newlyweds away. "John Law" mercifully decided to help and turned on his sirens and increased his speed. They succeeded in eluding all but one car before they reached Leon Jones' braid plant, where they met Catherine and Leon. Leon blocked the pursuer's car, while Roy and Margaret ran through the plant to Roy's automobile, which was being held for them. The motor was even running!

It was all too exciting, and everyone was doubly thrilled when they found that the car that had pursued to the bitter end was driven by Tom Cox Jr., whose wife, Johnnie, had made movies of the whole getaway!

Wouldn't those cops be surprised to know "they're in the movies now"? And wouldn't the wedding party be surprised to know how Roy and Margaret rated a police escort with sirens to help them get out of town!

● ● ● ALL ROADS lead to Clayton today, where antique lovers from neighboring sections may enjoy to their hearts' content the beautiful array of unusual and beautiful pieces at Windy Hill, the attractive mountain retreat of Mrs. Paul Turner, of Atlanta. Windy Hill, located just above Lakemont, is a fascinating retreat for this lovely Atlantan, whose hobby is collecting antique furniture, glassware and china.

Today and tomorrow members of the Clayton Woman's Club are sponsoring an antique show at Windy Hill, and serving tea between 2:30 and 6 o'clock. The small silver offering will be used for such good causes as buying milk and lunches for poor children in the section.

Mrs. Turner pursues her hobby with unflagging enthusiasm and spends the winter months collecting objects for her shop. She has a flair for interior decorating, and has arranged the things in her home at Lakemont as part of the furnishings. She has converted her rear bedroom into a glass room and displays her pieces in pine-corner cupboards, giving the place an intimate homey touch. Many friends of Mrs. Turner, as well as many casual acquaintances who have found their way to Windy Hill, have her to thank for starting their collections of old glass, in selection of which she is an expert. One of her greatest delights is scouting through the state for additional pieces of glass while on one of her famous buying sprees.

Calling during the afternoon were 200 members of the arried and unmarried social contingents.

After the latter ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Winfield Payne Jones will be hosts at a reception at the Piedmont Driving Club for their two daughters and for Mr. Lester and Mr. Dobbins, with a limited number of guests invited.

On Saturday evening Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Payne Jones entertain at a barbecue for their bride-elect sisters and their fiances at the home of Mrs. Fred Gould in East Lake.

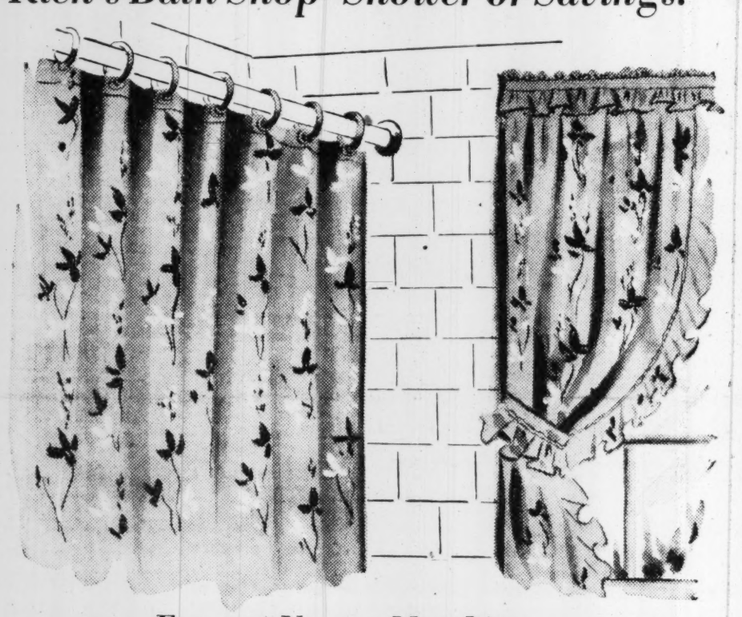

On August 12 Mrs. Alex Smith will honor the two couples at a cocktail party at her home on Tuxedo road, the guests to be limited to members of the two wedding parties. The rehearsal party will be given for both couples by Mr. and Mrs. Winfield Marshall Jones, who will be hosts at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Winfield Payne Jones on Dellwood drive.

Miss Mary Virginia McConnell gives a breakfast at her home on Woodward Way and on August 13 Mrs. Nat Hardin gives a luncheon. In the evening of the same day Miss Jones and Mr. Lester will share honors when Miss Georgia Adams gives a steak fry, the guests to be members of the wedding party. Miss Dorothy Peteet has planned a luncheon for August 14 at the Piedmont Driving Club.

Yesterday Miss Jeannette Cox gave a morning coffee for the lovely bride-elect.

The following parties have been planned for Miss Helen Jones: Mrs. Beverly DuBose gives a luncheon Friday at the Piedmont Driving Club after which Miss Julia Block entertains at a bridge party, at the club. On Saturday Miss Dagmar Peterson gives a shower at the Druid Hills Golf Club and on August 14 Misses Betty and Lillian Hamilton, of Dalton, give a luncheon at the Driving Club. Anne Noble's Favorite Hobby Expressed in Wedding Gifts

By SALLY FORTH.

● ● ● FOR SEVERAL YEARS Anne Noble has been collecting beautiful pieces of sparkling cutglass as her favorite hobby. Cutglass, as you know, reached its most fashionable vogue back "when mother was a girl," for some reason or other being shoved into the background with the progress of time. The result is that, while not rare, private china cabinets and antique shops by no means are overflowing with collectors' pieces.

Even so, Anne has been given a number of pieces as wedding gifts, and they will occupy a prominent place in the home in which she will preside as hostess following her marriage to William Hardie Naff on Saturday.

Her fiance's mother, Mrs. William T. Naff Jr., has given her an exquisite cutglass fruit dish. And from her aunt, Mrs. V. H. Taliferro, of Eatonton, she has received a handsome pitcher that has been in the latter's family for a number of years.

Another piece Anne will treasure through the years to come is the beautiful vase that belonged to her paternal grandmother, the late Mrs. George Noble Sr. The bride-elect's mother, Mrs. Rogers Noble, is having it made into a charming lamp for her daughter.

The future bride, by the way, is planning to be married in traditional white, and her veil and the coronet to which it will be attached will constitute the "something borrowed" in her attire.

The veil is being loaned to her by the former Katherine Barnwell King, who wore it when she recently became the bride of James Minter. The coronet is being borrowed from Anne's cousin, Mrs. Robert Lorton, the former Beverly Rogers, whose father, Harold O. Rogers, will give his niece in marriage on Saturday.

● ● ● DEAS HAMILTON is another popular bride-elect who is receiving a number of handsome wedding presents prior to her marriage to Joseph Hale on August 22. But just about the most exciting of their possessions is not a gift, but the brand-new house they have purchased on Gladstone street near the Bobby Jones golf course.

Constructed of white-painted brick, it is attractively designed with brown shutters and a green roof. And Deas already has decided upon the color schemes for each room and begun to collect permanent objects for their decoration.

It was this charming future abode that inspired the table decoration for the shower given for Deas last evening by Anna McConneghey at her home on Morningside drive. An exact replica of the house, the miniature counterpart even boasted a driveway with a toy automobile parked at the door, tiny shrubs landscaped in duplicate arrangement of the real ones, and a small signpost bearing the name of the street. Even the number of the house was in its proper place over the front door.

Anna, whose ingenuity as a hostess is well known, remembered even the most minute detail. But the real stroke of her genius was expressed in the tiny groom carrying his miniature bride over the threshold in traditional romantic fashion!

Nor did the hostess' cleverness stop with this. She and Deas, you know, are members of the Chi Omega sorority, the guests having included only sister members of this organization. All of which provided the keynote for the party's color scheme.

Cardinal and straw, the sorority colors, were carried out in the floral decorations throughout the reception rooms, in the calla lily placecards, and in the refreshments. The final touch was the use of the sorority emblem as the decoration on the individual cakes served with the dessert!

● ● ● AFTER the reception following the marriage of Margaret Merts and Roy Workman, the guests waited, hopefully, on the lawn, rice in hand, for the couple to attempt a "getaway." And somehow, even though Roy had had his car painted a bright blue for disguise, the cat had gotten out of the bag! A member of the wedding party had blocked Leon and Cat Jones' car, in which the bride and groom were to be whisked away, and it couldn't be moved!

Minutes passed, and finally, when the newlyweds appeared, everyone raced to the Joneses car—with the exception of the bride and groom! They accompanied Judd and Lucia Ewing Valentine, and five or six cars took off after them. In fact, the "motorcade" was in such a hurry that it was stopped by the cops! Of course, the officers detained the car carrying the bride and groom, but after much conversation, Lucia Valentine finally convinced them that it was a "worthy cause" to be getting the newlyweds away. "John Law" mercifully decided to help and turned on his sirens and increased his speed. They succeeded in eluding all but one car before they reached Leon Jones' braid plant, where they met Catherine and Leon. Leon blocked the pursuer's car, while Roy and Margaret ran through the plant to Roy's automobile, which was being held for them. The motor was even running!

It was all too exciting, and everyone was doubly thrilled when they found that the car that had pursued to the bitter end was driven by Tom Cox Jr., whose wife, Johnnie, had made movies of the whole getaway!

Wouldn't those cops be surprised to know "they're in the movies now"? And wouldn't the wedding party be surprised to know how Roy and Margaret rated a police escort with sirens to help them get out of town!

● ● ● ALL ROADS lead to Clayton today, where antique lovers from neighboring sections may enjoy to their hearts' content the beautiful array of unusual and beautiful pieces at Windy Hill, the attractive mountain retreat of Mrs. Paul Turner, of Atlanta. Windy Hill, located just above Lakemont, is a fascinating retreat for this lovely Atlantan, whose hobby is collecting antique furniture, glassware and china.

Today and tomorrow members of the Clayton Woman's Club are sponsoring an antique show at Windy Hill, and serving tea between 2:30 and 6 o'clock. The small silver offering will be used for such good causes as buying milk and lunches for poor children in the section.

Mrs. Turner pursues her hobby with unflagging enthusiasm and spends the winter months collecting objects for her shop. She has a flair for interior decorating, and has arranged the things in her home at Lakemont as part of the furnishings. She has converted her rear bedroom into a glass room and displays her pieces in pine-corner cupboards, giving the place an intimate homey touch. Many friends of Mrs. Turner, as well as many casual acquaintances who have found their way to Windy Hill, have her to thank for starting their collections of old glass, in selection of which she is an expert. One of her greatest delights is scouting through the state for additional pieces of glass while on one of her famous buying sprees.

A Hot Casserole For a Healthier Meal

Make this crab-and-olive casserole the main dish for luncheon or dinner on summer days.

By Sally Saver.

One hot dish in every meal is sound meal-planning even in midsummer. Research shows that digestion is speeded up and improved if the whole meal is not cold. Try this casserole as the main dish for dinner or luncheon; it can be put together, left in the refrigerator until half an hour before serving time, when it can be popped into the oven for heating and browning.

Crab and Olive Casserole.

4 tablespoons butter or margarine
4 tablespoons flour
2¼ cups milk
1 can (6½ ounces) American crab meat
1 small bottle green olives
4 tablespoons buttered bread crumbs

Melt butter or margarine in saucepan. Blend in flour. Add milk gradually, stirring to prevent lumping. Cook for 3 to 5 minutes. Remove from heat and add crab meat and sliced olives. Pour mixture into a greased baking dish, cover with buttered bread crumbs and make in moderately hot oven, 375 degrees, until top is burned.

Luncheon Menu.

Jellied Consomme
Crab and Olive Casserole
Sliced Pickled Beets
Tomato Wedges Hard Rolls
Peach Refrigerator Cake
Iced Tea or Iced Coffee

Soldier Still Owes Support to Family

By Dixie George.

Dear Dixie:

I have been married for five years. My husband has been in the Army nearly a year. He comes home often, but when he comes he is always drunk. He drinks the entire time he is here and nearly runs me crazy. We have one child. He draws thirty-six dollars a month, and sends the baby and myself ten dollars a month. He joined the Army of his own accord. He is very jealous of me and does not want me to go anywhere. I am true and loyal to him and he says he loves me and seems to think a lot of the baby. I am living with my mother now. Do you think he loves me? Do you think he will ever be together again? Do you think ten dollars a month is enough to support me and the child? Do you think we should separate now and, if we do, do you think that he can be made to support the baby?

LONELY WIFE AND SON.

I do not see how it is possible for you to live and support your child on ten dollars a month. It seems to me that he should have made some arrangement for you and the baby before he joined the Army. There are many married men in the Army, and that is no excuse for his neglecting you and the baby. There are ample accommodations in Army camps or near by for soldiers and their families, so I do not think your husband has much of an excuse for not living with you, unless he has ceased loving you. Just because he joined the Army for three years is no indication that he does not love you. As for you two being together again, there is no way for me to tell you if that is possible. I think I would try to make some readjustment before divorcing him. If you leave him now, you will not be in any better situation. As for his supporting the baby, that will be a matter for the courts to decide. This column does not answer legal questions.

CAREFUL CAMPAIGN WILL BREAK BOY'S MONOPOLY

Dear Dixie:

I am a 14-year-old girl and fully realize that I am too young to be madly in love, and furthermore I do not want to be. I would like to go out with all my friends and up until a few months ago I did, but now that one certain boy says he like me, the others leave me alone. I do not want all of the boys, but I do not want to go steady with any one boy.

NEED HELP.

It certainly is refreshing to have a letter from a 14-year-old girl with such sensible ideas. The thing for you to do, is to map out some plans just as though the situation were a campaign. If possible, try and arrange to have some of the other boys over at your home without asking the certain one. I think your parents would be delighted to co-operate with you in order to keep you friendly with all of them, rather with just one. Then, with the aid of some of your friends, you could arrange to be coupled with one of the boys in your crowd, and not this special one. Remember that appearances count a lot.

Slipcovers For Problem Furniture

Weep no more, my lady—about that out-of-date old chair spoiling your plans for a fall fixing-up! Year-round slip covers are more popular than ever! And, the pin-on way, you can easily make one for your problem chair.

Think how lovely it would look in the cover in our picture—a sturdy cotton with autumn leaves and berries on a beige ground.

First step in making your cover is to remove cushion and smooth fabric down front of back and over seat, wrong side out if you're making welted seams. So cover won't rip under yur first hefty guest, allow a generous tuck-in between back and seat—about four inches.

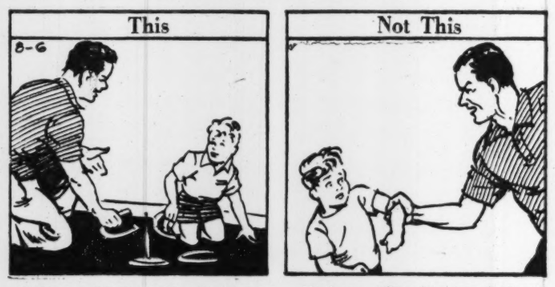

Now pin fabric along lines of the upholstery and cut 1 1-2 inches outside pins to allow for seams. That's the way you fit the rest of your cover, too—arms, sides, back and front.

Carefully remove the pinned-up cover, baste and try on. Insert welting between seams before you stitch. Last is the flounce, which is very smart when made straight, with inverted pleats at the corners.

Send 15c in coins for our booklet, MAKING SLIP COVERS SUCCESSFULLY, to Home Institute, care of The Atlanta Constitution, Atlanta, Ga. Write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

To Develop Better Feet Go Barefoot When You Can

By Dr. William Brady.

Weakening and flattening of the transverse arch of the foot is commonly accompanied with pain in the forefoot, pain called metatarsalgia or sometimes Morton's toe.

Some physicians attempt to distinguish Morton's toe from metatarsalgia. They regard Morton's toe as a neuritis (inflammation of nerve) caused by pressure upon a branch of the plantar nerve by the head of the fourth metatarsalgia bone. The pain in this condition is characteristic. It comes on suddenly, sometimes from slight injury, and it is sharp, lancinating and localized around the base of the fourth toe, though it sometimes extends to the tip of the fourth toe and up the inside of the leg. When the pain comes on the sufferer can find relief only by removing the shoe, rubbing the forefoot and flexing and extending the toes.

The pain of metatarsalgia is rather a dull aching and it is brought on by prolonged use of the foot either in walking or standing, but is confined to the forefoot.

In metatarsalgia or Morton's toe there is usually a callus on the sole under the head of the fourth metatarsal bone. The hollow or crease made by the transverse arch in the sole of the foot is nearly or quite obliterated and the foot is somewhat broader in consequence of flattening of the transverse arch.

A leather insole exactly fitted in the shoe so that it will not move about may have a soft leather or sponge rubber pad attached to it to support the transverse arch. The pad should be about two inches long and 1 1-2 inches wide, one-fourth inch thick at the center and beveled off to a very thin edge all around. If there is a callus on the sole this pad should be precisely the size of the callus and it should be directly under the callus in the insole. The width and thickness of the pad may be varied to suit the individual condition. Some patients prefer a very narrow pad, others a wider one.

Wearing shoes that have outflaring soles or toes, shoes that immobilize the forefoot, shoes that have too high heels, are apt to promote this condition. Going barefoot whenever possible is good prevention and treatment. If necessary wear suitable pads under the sole, held in place with adhesive strapping. Shoes a size wider than may be tolerable should be worn so that the muscles of the feet may get proper exercise by free movement of the toes and feet in walking.

In a few cases of Morton's toe, if these measures fail to bring relife, it is necessary to remove the head of the fourth metatarsal bone. This is a simple operation and it usually gives excellent results.

Mary Martin Gets Order To Relearn Her Accent And Lay It on Thick

By Harold Heffernan.

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 5.—Sidelights on new films: "Kiss the Boys Goodbye," introducing Mary Martin, (who'll never disassociate herself from "My Heart Belongs to Daddy") as lisping, singing southern belle out to trick show producer into giving her star role.

Clare Booth's satiric Broadway hit of the same name completely transformed from top to bottom . . . originally written as take-off on Selznick's movie hunt for Scarlett O'Hara, it now tunrs face and pokes sharp barbs at stage producers. The part of Cindy Lou offers Mary Martin finest opportunity to date. . . . Her role so far overshadows all others that Don Ameche, et al., appear as mere stooges. Curiously, when Mary arrived in Hollywood from Weatherford, Texas, her first determination was to rid herself of her southern accent. As Cindy Lou, she not only had to relearn it, but she had to lay it on with a trowel.

Other genuine southerners of cast include Elizabeth Patterson, of Savannah, Tenn., whose "you-alls" once horrified Sir Philip Ben Greet when she joined his Shakespearean company; Minor Watson, of Marianna, Ark., who plays Uncle Jefferson Davis Bethany to Miss Patterson's Aunt Cindy Lou, and Virginia Dale, of Charlotte, N. C., seen as Cindy's chorus girl roommate.

Damyankees are represented by Ameche, of Kenosha, Wis., and Oscar Levant, of Pittsburgh. Rochester, who ought to be the deepest southerner of all, can't even claim to be southern Californian. He hails from Oakland. Some of the play's characters, such as newspaper publisher and Communistic columnist, have been eliminated. Instead of the latter, the film has Levant playing reasonable facsimile of Oscar Levant, as misanthropic composer who champions Cindy Lou. "Top" Rumson, simple-minded polo player, now becomes a wealthy tycoon (Raymond Walburn) who angels the stage show. As such, he replaces the character of that roving wolf, the party host in original.

"Three Sons O' Guns"—from an original screen play written by Fred Niblo Jr., son of one of Hollywood's most famous silent directors. This is a timely tale based on the problems of American youth in relation to the draft. For the first time in his career, Wayne Morris has no romance. Instead of a girl he's in love with a trombone, which he plays throughout. Irene Rich, fast establishing self as screen's leading mother, wears an apron in all but four scenes. Miss Rich experiences romance for the first time in the last ten years of screen work. Moroni Olsen, whom she kissed 49 times (counting every take) is her suitor.

Tom Brown asked the studio if he could wear a mustache in the last scene of the picture. Now 29, Brown looks the same today as he did 12 years ago. He is trying to convince producers that by wearing a lip decoration he can be a leading man instead of juvenile.

Today's Charm Tip

If you would outrival a pretty face or a beautiful one, cultivate "style" in everything you do. Have style in your carriage, your voice, your manner, in everything.

MY DAY: English Women Serve as Pilots

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

NEW YORK CITY, Monday.—We spent a good part of yesterday driving through not only the heaviest rain I have ever seen, but a hailstorm! I began to wonder if the hailstones would come through the top of my car, since they were bouncing off the hood to the ground and hitting hard against our windows. I could not help feeling sorry for the farmers, for it must have done much damage to their crops.

Finally, a little after 1 o'clock, we found a place to turn off the road and managed to eat a picnic lunch in the car while the storm wore itself out. After that, it rained very heavily until fairly late in the afternoon, but no more hail came down.

When we stopped for gas, just before 7 o'clock, the friendly garage man said that their storm had been chiefly wind and rain. His wife came out of the station and asked if I was Mrs. Roosevelt, saying she had recognized me, but the girls there insisted I could not be myself!

A little after 7 we stopped for dinner at Lamie's, which is on the corner of the road that goes to Hampton Beach, N. H. They have very good food, but the crowd was so great that I wondered whether it would be worth waiting 15 minutes for a table.

We decided that on a Sunday evening every restaurant would be crowded, and finally we sat down to a very good dinner. The proprietor said he had never had so busy a summer. On Saturday they had 3,000 people and they closed at 3 a. m. and opened again at 6 the next morning. He told me that, like many other places, they use college boys and girls to wait on table, but have a regular staff as well and are busy all through the winter.

I have been hearing lately how much women pilots are doing in England. They ferry planes to places of safety when they are not in use, and fill in so that men can get some rest when duty is neither combat duty nor dangerous service. I wonder if, in this country, in the CAA courses or in the services, we have begun to train women so they may perform such duties. It would seem to be wise to give women pilots this opportunity, since we know they have been so useful they may perform such duties. It would seem to be wise to give women pilots this opportunity, since we know they have been so useful in other countries.

When Miss Irene Eulalie Harvey, daughter of Mrs. James Alfred Harvey and the late Mr. Harvey, married Christopher Joseph Sullivan, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Christopher J. Sullivan, yesterday morning her beautiful white marquisette gown was graced with a crescent shaped diamond pin. The pin was given the bride by the groom and formerly belonged to his mother.

Entertainment Plans for Chute Unit Approved

Fort Benning Battalion To Be Guests Here at Film Premiere.

Final confirmation by the War Department and U. S. O. officials for the entertainment of 446 men and 62 officers of the 501st Parachute Battalion in Atlanta, August 14, in connection with the world premiere of the movie, "Parachute Battalion," was obtained yesterday.

The parachutists will arrive at 5 o'clock in the afternoon, parade through downtown Atlanta to the Fox theater. They will be entertained at a dinner in the Shrine Mosque at 8 o'clock and then attend the premiere, which they played a prominent part in making. Most of the film was "shot" at Fort Benning.

A U. S. O.-sponsored dance will be given at the auditorium for the parachutists following the premiere.

The two diviisons, at 162 Luckie street, registered 2,445 students during the term which closes with completion of the present summer quarters as compared with 2,187 the year before.

Fall quarter classes at the Evening College begin September 15 and Junior College classes start September 29, Dr. Sparks said.

Rivals Supply Precision Tools; Sabotaged Shops at Full Output

DETROIT, Aug. 5.—(AP)—Toolmakers in two plants crippled by thefts of precision instruments went ahead on full defense production schedules today, thanks to quick help from rival companies and private citizens.

Word of the thieves' work got around rapidly, and help came fast—from as far distant as Minneapolis.

Heavily engaged on defense work, the Majestic Tool & Manufacturing Corporation and the Central Machine Company were invaded early Sunday by thieves who stole several thousand dollars' worth of micrometers, gauges, and other instruments.

A halt to production appeared inevitable. Then the help started coming in to grateful managements.

"Within a short time," said John W. Parker, "we had enough instruments to continue our work on a full-time basis. Without them we would have been forced to shut down indefinitely.

"A long-distance telephone call from Minneapolis offered a height gauge—an instrument almost impossible to obtain in less than three months.

"Others didn't bother to phone—they just walked in with the instruments they knew we had to have to keep the wheels in this shop turning," he said.

Crop Freezing Bill Given to Congress

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—(AP)—Senators Smith, Democrat, South Carolina, and Bankhead, Democrat, Alabama, reported unanimous agreement late today by a senate-house conference committee on legislation that would freeze government loan stocks of cotton and wheat during the present war.

The conference report now must be acted upon by the house and senate.

Senators said the measure was intended to improve prices and would prevent the government from marketing stocks of cotton and wheat, acquired under price-supporting loans, in competition with new crops.

Telephone, Signal Lines Reported Cut at Lyon

VICHY, France, Aug. 5.—(AP)—Saboteurs were reported today to have cut railway telephone and signal lines during the night at Lyon, one of the most important railway junctions in France.

Police have been seeking persons who cut telephone lines near two Lyon freight stations several days ago.

Saroyan Offers Play To Aid U. S. Defense

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—(AP)—For national defense, William Saroyan will give film rights to his play, "The Time of Your Life," to any Hollywood studio which will donate production costs and turn over proceeds to the government.

In a full-page display to appear tomorrow in Variety, theatrical weekly, Saroyan declares his belief that "art, in its way, is as great a weapon for the defense of right as a strong army and a strong navy."

Poultry Imports Equal Half Sales

Although Georgia's climate is unexcelled for poultry production, the state annually imports poultry products valued at from $15,000,000 to $20,000,000, J. C. Bell, acting head of the poultry department at the University of Georgia College of Agriculture, said yesterday in a report to the Board of Regents.

This sum equals half the yearly receipts from poultry and poultry products in Georgia.

Asserting that poultry and egg prices should "remain good for the next two or three years," Bell said the state's farm income could be increased by a greater production. At present, he added, only five per cent of the state's agricultural income is derived from poultry products, which provide 12 per cent of the national farm income.

Burge and Chipman Sold to Dodgers for More Than $50,000

All in The Game

BY JACK TROY

Man of His Word

Well, sir, Earl Mann's a man of his word. Sure enough. He said he was going to sell Lester Burge for $1,000 a home run, and it may be that he did a little better than that in the combination sale involving Bob Chipman.

Just how much over $50,000 the deal amounted to I am not at liberty to say, but certain it is that Burge's part of it was easily $35,000. And up to date he has hit 34 home runs.

Liberal Larry MacPhail is a prodigal spender. When he becomes convinced a player will help the Dodgers, price is no object. He doesn't go off half-cocked on a player, however.

For instance, Scout Ted McGrew has seen Burge and Chipman in action a large part of the season and in many different parks. It was a thorough job of scouting. And McGrew finally convinced MacPhail that the two Crackers would prove real assets to the Dodgers of 1942.

Burge is a real bargin for $35,000. He is a proven hitter, being especially tough on left-handed pitchers, and as a fielder he is the league's best at first base.

The Cincinnati Reds paid $35,000 for Mike Dejan and may never realize any good on the investment. On the other hand, the Chicago Cubs paid a like amount for Bill Nicholson and he's a star.

There's no reason why Burge shouldn't be a major league sensation. The Southern League's Sulton of Swat will have shorter fences at which to aim in most National League parks. And he certainly won't prove a drawback in the field.

Fooled Most of Us

Mann and Paul Richards could see something in Burge that none of the rest of us could see. Some of us were too hasty to form an opinion of Burge as a first baseman. We never gave him a chance to get accustomed to the position.

He virtually lost all of last year because of a thumb injury. It may have been better if he hadn't played at all. This handicap made him look worse than he actually was.

At any rate, Mann and Richards could visualize Burge as a fancy Dan in the field and a great all-round hitter. This latter was not as hard to visualize as the former.

It is hardly necessary to point out how Burge has come through. I rather imagine he has even exceeded the fondest expectations of Mann and Richards as a fielder.

Fleming To Play

Nashville still leads the Crackers in player sales, as far as number of players is concerned. But it's a certainty that the Burge-Chipman sale price exceeds the total Larry Gilbert got for Tatum, Drake, Felderman and Meers.

By the way, Gilbert expects to have Les Fleming back in uniform before the season ends. Fleming was not as badly injured as stories pictured. He broke a bone in his right wrist but merely sprained the left wrist.

So his value has not been impaired by the collision with the grandstand wall at Little Rock. This is good news for the Nashville organization, for it means Fleming may bring such a price as to enable the club to stay out of the red.

He Played Banff

Young Billy Harris is seeing the country with Alan Yates and a group of other youngsters on a Piedmont tour. Harris and Yates are members of the Boys' High golf team and they have been taking advantage of the opportunity to play some of the country's famous courses. They played Banff recently and Billy writes entertainingly of the experience to his father, as follows:

"Well, Pop, I played Banff, and I don't know whether it was worth it or not. I rented some clubs and Yates and I really had a time. It is the prettiest and the hardest course I've ever seen. Yates had about an 82 and didn't think the course hard. Ha! Ha! I had about a 90 and considered myself lucky. They said the 18th hole has 36 traps. I didn't count them, but I believe it, because I was in every one I could find. They had the strangest greens. Well, about the greens, I believe they are built on rock or something. I was hitting the greens pretty well, as was Yates, but the balls would bounce several feet in the air and roll all the way over the green, then when you finally got on them they would putt very slowly.

"I am sending you a scorecard. What score there is is Yates'.

"Something else—out of the 300,000 people who've played the course only three have broken 70. Charlie Yates has the record with a 66—wow! The first time Sarazen played the course, which was several years ago, he had an 86."

The tour includes Yellowstone National Park, Lake Louise, Banff, Seattle, Yosemite, Los Angeles, Malibou Beach, New Mexico and New Orleans. The boys really are seeing America first and getting a kick out of playing some of the ultra-swank golfing layouts of the nation.

Lighted Courts Now Available

George I. Simons, manager of the city parks, announced yesterday that night tennis courts at Piedmont park are now open and the lighted courts at Grant park will be opened tonight.

Simons said plans are to keep the courts open until 11 o'clock at present but if they prove popular enough and the public wants it, they will stay open until later.

Bobby Jones' Negro Boxer Wins by Kayo

BROOKLYN, Aug. 5.—(AP)—Beau Jack, a Negro lightweight from Augusta, Ga., by way of Springfield, Mass., and sponsored by a golf club locker room boy and several other celebrities, made his Metropolitan fistic debut tonight with a victory, accompanied by a round of boos.

He was matched with Minnie De More, a willing but inept Trenton youngster, and Referee Jimmy Crowley stopped the bout at 1 minute 7 seconds of the third round of a preliminary fight at Ebbets Field, giving Jack a technical knockout victory. Jack, who weighed 134 1-2 to his rival's 131 3-4, completely outclassed the Jerseyman and floored him five times, but De More did not appear badly hurt at the finish, and the small crowd, figuring he was able to continue, booed for five minutes at the quick ending.

Jack, who was born Sidney Walker in Augusta, has done most of his recent fighting in Springfield. Tonight's was his 26th victory in 27 starts. His manager of record is Bowman Miligan, locker room boy at the Augusta National Golf Club, but also interested in his career are such other well known figures as Mr. and Mrs. Tom Yawkey, the Boston baseball folks; Frank Craven and Frank Crumit, of the stage; Bobby Jones, the golfer, and Grantland Rice, the sports writer.

LESTER BURGE, CRACKERS' POWERFUL FIRST BASEMAN

Fort McClellan Boxers Show At Lakewood

Rogozzino, Ex-National Champ, Leads Soldiers Here Friday Night.

One of the finest boxing teams within the armed forces of the United States will appear Friday night at Lakewood park when the crack Fort McClellan, Ala., crew meets Atlanta's best amateurs at Lakewood park.

This will be the last show before the big charity program to be sponsored by the Atlanta Kiwanis Club's Underprivileged Child's Committee Friday night of next week, when many of the south's finest boxers will appear on a mammoth card at Lakewood. Tickets, incidentally, are now on sale for the show at the Kiwanis Club offices in the Ansley hotel.

The McClellan team will be led here by Phil Rogozzino, former national champion and winner of the light heavyweight title in the Southeastern Golden Gloves tournament here last February.

Other members of the Soldier team who will fight here are Francis Pondillo, and Frank Rich, featherweights; and George Clemens, welterweight.

In all, there will be at least eight fights, starting at 8:30. Admission is 20 cents.

John S. Blick, chairman of the Kiwanis Club Child's Committee, who will serve as matchmaker for the August 15 show, announces plans are going forward for a gigantic card. Fort Benning and Gainesville boxers already have agreed to come here.

Station WATL will broadcast a blow-by-blow account of both this week's and August 15 shows.

Louis, Nova Fight Set Sept. 17 in N. Y.

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—(UP)—Developments today indicated that Joe Louis and Lou Nova will meet in their heavyweight championship battle at the Polo Grounds, on or about September 17.

Despite attractive offers from sportsmen in Boston, Chicago, Detroit and other cities for the fight, Promoter Mike Jacobs apparently has decided to keep it in New York. Jacobs would not comment upon the site or date today.

The Polo Grounds will be the battle site, instead of larger Yankee stadium, because Jacobs wants to stage his bout during the week of September 14 when the New York Yankees are playing at home.

Mildred Burke and Dorv Roche To Headline Mat Card Tonight

Mildred Burke, National Wrestling Association champion, and Anne Laverne, of Canada, feature tonight's wrestling show at Northside Tennis Club, located at Juniper and North Avenue.

Last week Miss Burke stole the show from the men and won over the crowd with her slam-bang victory against Gladys Gillem. Her knowledge of the tricks of the trade and her willingness to take the hardest bumps made the match highly pleasing to the big crowd.

Tonight, Mildred will have to really work to steal the thunder from the men, because Dorv Roche is on the card, meeting Harry Kent. The other male match sends Milo Strongberg against Jack Kennedy.

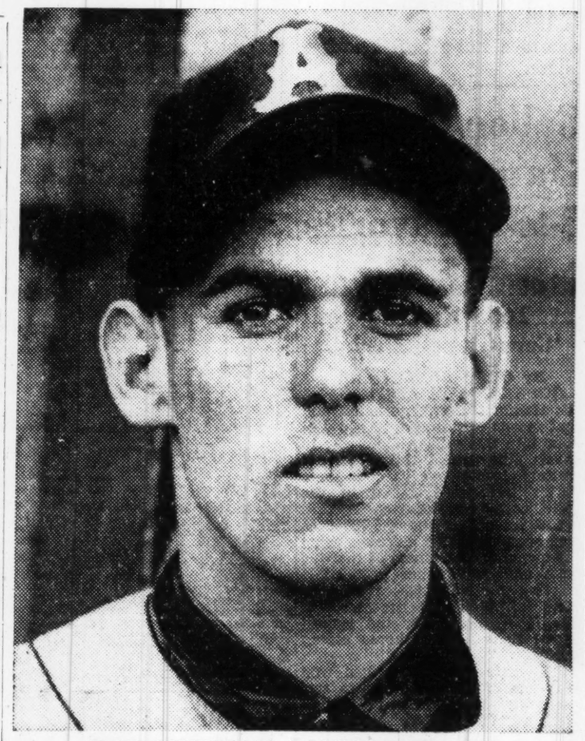

The Burke-Laverne match is billed by Promoter Abe Simon as one of those grudge affairs. According to the story, Ann wrestled Miss Burke in Cleveland six months ago and came out of the ring with a gorgeous cauliflower ear. Now the Laverne woman is out for revenge. She promises to make both of Mildred's ears tin. If this happens, Burke promises to donate her ears to the defense effort.

The Edwards Family Troup, acrobats extraordinary, will follow up last week's fine performance with another exhibition which is said to be a thriller.

The program starts at 8:30.

BOB CHIPMAN, SOUTHPAW ACE

Crackers' Slugging Star And Brilliant Southpaw Will Report This Fall

Brooklyn Pays Record Southern League Price for Pair, Earl Mann Discloses.

By JACK TROY,
Constitution Sports Editor.

Lester (Babe) Burge and Bob (Bullet) Chipman have been sold to the Brooklyn Dodgers for a record Southern League price.

Liberal Larry MacPhail did not announce the bundle of cash he handed over to the Atlanta Baseball Corporation for the Cracker stars, but it is understood to exceed $50,000.

Burge cost the Dodgers a large part of it. He has been trailed most of the season by Scout Ted McGraw, who originally claimed Burge was strictly a low-ball hitter. McGrew became convinced the more he watched Burge, however, that the only weakness he had was on a ball pitched "low and in behind him."

WORTH ANY SUM.

McGrew watched Burge clout towering homers over the toughest fences in the league and finally reported to MacPhail that he was well worth any sum it would take to buy him. Naturally, he saw Chipman a lot of the time and considered him the class of the league's left-handed pitchers.

Burge and Chipman were sold for fall delivery, President Earl Mann announced yesterday, and while he was not a position to disclose the amount of money they brought, he did say that "as a pair they brought a price in excess of any previous Southern League sum."

Selling players for a record price is nothing new to Mann. Johnny Rucker was sold to the Giants in a transaction that amounted to $40,000. The Pirates paid $19,000 last year for Alf Anderson.

Chipman, who battled undulant fever the first part of the season, has won 12 and lost 8. Burge has hit 34 home runs and driven in 126 runs. He has a wide lead in both departments.

Burge and Chipman are the first of several Cracker players likely to be sold to the major leagues. But no other pair is likely to bring the price that Brooklyn paid for Burge and Chipman.

"MOST IMPROVED."

Afield, Burge is consdered the most improved player in the Southern League. Dolph Camilli, the Brooklyn's present first baseman, is a fancy fielder but a light hitter.

For a long time Frank Veverka was the top left-handed pitcher, but after winning 12 games Veverka has hit a string of reverses which included seven losses in a row. Part of it was due to lack of hitting on the part of his Memphis teammates.

At any rate, Chipman today is considered the league's foremost southpaw.

Cracker, 'Nooga Game Rained Out

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Aug. 5.—Atlanta and Chattanooga were rained and stormed out tonight in their attempt to play the fourth game of the series and will play a double-header tomorrow at 5 and 8:15 p. m.

Two innings were played tonight before a terrific rainstorm brought a stop to hostilities. At the time the score was 0-0, with Lochbaum, of Atlanta, and Polli, of the Lookouts, hooked up in what promised to be a hot mound duel.

Ed Heusser and Floyd Stromme are expected to pitch the twin bill for the league-leaders, who have dropped all three of the games in the current series.

Mrs. Mars Repaid By Black Raider

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—(AP)—Mrs. Ethel Mars, of Chicago, who has contributed heavily to the incomes of horse-breeders who sell their yearlings at Saratoga in August, got some of her money back today when Black Raider won the 20th Saratoga Sales Stakes.

The black son of Ariel, who cost Mrs. Mars $5,500 in the sales paddock last year, collected $3,600 to bring his earnings for his two-year-old season up to $19,300. It was his fourth stakes triumph. The colt skipped home two lengths in front of Louis Lee Haggin II's Air Current, which beat out Mr. and Mrs. Edward S. Moore's Sir War by a half length. Mrs. Dodge Sloane's Sundial was a close fourth after being smothered by Sir War in the stretch.

RETAINS TITLE.

GLASGOW, Scotland, Aug. 5.—(AP)—Jim Brady, of Dundee, retained his British Empire bantamweight boxing championship tonight by outpointing Glasgow's Jackie Paterson in a 15-round bout. It was the first defeat in nearly two years for the favored Paterson, who holds the empire flyweight crown.

Bitsy Wins, But Gillespie Falls In Rye Tourney

RYE, N. Y., Aug. 5.—(AP)—The second round of the eastern grass court tennis championships was completed today without a hint of trouble for the favorites. From top-seeded Bobby Riggs, of Clinton, S. C., right down to Arthur Marx, of Hollywood, Cal., a youngster who is making tennis fans forget to refer to him as the movie comedian's son, the players who were expected to win did win—and usually in straight sets.

Riggs gave his strokes a good workout at the expense of Bill Canning, of Hidden Valley, Cal., winning 6-4, 6-3, after running his opponent from baseline to net and back again with a mixture of drop shots and deep-driven backhand placements.

Marx, who will take on National Champion Don McNeill, of Oklahoma City, in the third round, knocked off Ronald Edwards, of San Jose, Cal., 7-5, 6-3. McNeil, seeded second in this tourney, whipped William Umstaedter, of Millburn, N. J., 6-3, 6-0.

In between these extremes, Frank Kovacs, of Oakland, Cal., Ted Schroeder, of Glendale, Cal.; Jack Kramer, of Los Angeles, Schroeder's national champion doubles partner; Gardnar Mulloy, of Coral Gables, Fla.; Billy Talbert, of Cincinnati, who beat Atlanta's Gillespie, 6-3, 6-3; Ladislav Hecht, of New York; Charles Olewine, of Santa Monica, Cal.; Sidney Wood, of New York; Ed Amark, of San Francisco, and Bryan Grant, of Atlanta, all came through to complete the round of sixteen. Grant beat S. Ellsworth Davenport III, Forest Hills, N. Y., 6-2, 6-8, 8-6.

Bucs Bump Reds, 7-5 To Sweep Set; Braves Outslug Phils.

CHICAGO, Aug. 5.—(AP)—Southpaw Vern Olsen pitched the Chicago Cubs to a 6-to-2 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals today, setting the league leaders down with four hits and slicing their first-place margin to one game. Bill Nicholson sent four runs home with two singles.

Railway, Western Play Softball Finals Tonight

Expressmen Whip L and J., 4 to 2, in Semi-Finals as Enlow Hurls Six-Hitter.

Railway Express last night won its way into the finals of the city softball tournament with a hard-earned 4-to-2 victory over Lucas & Jenkins at Warren field.

The Expressmen will play Western Auto tonight at 9 o'clock at Warren for the city title and the right to represent Atlanta in the state tournament here later this month.

Although in constant trouble throughout the game, Dave Enlow successfully held back the hard-hitting L. and J. players to pitch Railway into the finals. He allowed six hits, three of them for extra bases, and a number of walks, but two double plays and some great stops by his teammates kept Lucas from scoring until the last of the seventh when two futile runs drifted across.

Shorty Smith worked for the losers and gave up seven safeties. He scattered them in all but the sixth when all four of the winners' runs were scored.

Gershon and Ney got doubles and Taylor socked a triple for the losers. Pierce doubled for the winners, while Moore contributed a pair of singles.

The strong Police department's defending state championship team turned back Walker Electric, 5 to 1, in an exhibition game. Frank Stevens bested Sonny Shaw on the mound, allowing only one hit to Shaw's three.

Brown's homer with two on in the first inning was the telling blow.

In tonight's first game, starting at 8 o'clock, the Police Department will play International Harvester in an exhibition. Homer Carter will be on the mound for the Policemen.

Enlow will face Johnny Summers for the city championship. Summers has been hurlin' great ball during the tourney as has Enlow. The former will have the advantage of four days' rest, while Enlow has pitched two hard battles in as many nights.

Gallon Is Rated Hambletonian 3-to-2 Favorite

25,000 Fans Expected at 16th Running of 'Corn-Tassel' Derby.

By ORLO ROBERTSON.

GOSHEN, N. Y., Aug. 5.—(AP)—It's Hambletonian time again and that means upwards of 25,000 will pour into this village tomorrow to watch nine picked three-year-old trotters battle over Good Time park's triangular course in the 16th "corn-tassel" derby.

The lineup for the $38,729 race was completed this morning when the owners and trainers of the five colts and four fillies posted the starting fee of $500—final payment of the $960 necessary to qualify a trotter for the richest of all light harness horse racing stakes.

Although Bill Gallon has won only one of his five heats in two races this season, the son of Sandy Flash from R. H. Johnson's Charlotte, N. C., stable, figures to go postward the 3-to-2 favorite to take the winner's share of the purse, amounting to $20,365. He whipped all of the top two-year-olds in 1940 in hanging up a record of 2:04. This year he has bowed only to older horses in a handicap event and to Volstadt, a three-year-old not eligible for the Hambletonian.

Perpetual, winner of the Matron, National and Historic stakes this season, might have pushed Bill Gallon for honors in the probable odds book had he not been taken ill after winning the historic last Friday at the near-by half-mile track. As it was, his owner-driver, Dr. H. M. Parshall, of Urbana, Ohio, didn't decide until a few minutes before deadline to start the speedy son of Protector.

Parshall said he hoped to become the first owner to drive a winner of trotting's Kentucky Derby. The Ohio veterinarian won with Lord Jim in 1934 and Peter Astra two years ago, but they carried the silks of other owners.

Parshall said he was not sure if Perpetual would be at his best for the supreme test. As the result he was quoted at no better than 12 to 1.

Runner-up honors in pre-race quotations at 3 to 1 went to Bill Strang's His Excellency, a Brooklyn-owned colt who never has won a heat. But he was a consistent second to Bill Gallon in the 1940 juvenile stakes and this season has been bidding for the big money almost every time.

The only others given serious consideration were Fast Train and Florimel, who will run coupled in the betting. Fast train is owned by Ebby Gerry, chairman of the New York State Harness Racing Commission; Florimel, by his Uncle E. Roland Harriman.

$644,887 A DAY.

The Hollywood Park report shows the track averaged $644,881 in bets during its recent meeting, and the handle totalled $30,309,697 for the 47 days of the regular meet. Leading jockey was Ferrill Zufelt, the apprentice from Provo, Utah, who showed up the "name" riders by booting home 61 winners in piloting 297 mounts.

Feller Called 'Perfect Specimen'

Hurler To Be Classified in Few Weeks

CLEVELAND, Aug. 5.—(AP)—Pitcher Bob Feller was declared a perfect physical specimen as he quickly passed his selective service physical examination today.

The Cleveland Indians' 22-year-old hurling ace came through with ease in a half-hour checkup by two medical examiners for Board 20. One, Dr. Michael C. Geraci, commented: "He is a perfect specimen."

Rapid Robert, already a 20-game winner for the third season in a row, smiled and cracked jokes. He is expected to be classified in a few weeks by his board, and will undergo a later test by Army doctors before his expected induction late this year.

Selective service officials said there was little chance of the Iowan wearing a soldier's uiform before the end of the season. His Board 20 number is 2,857 and less than 2,500 registrants have been classified.

"It's a matter of weeks before he will be classified," Dr. W. L. Townsend, one of the board members, said recently. "We're not even close to Feller."

Bob received his questionnaire June 7.

City Amateur Opens Today at Capital City

Bob McCoy, Defending Champion, and Charlie Black Only Ex-Titlists in Field.

By AL SHARP.

With only two former champions expected to play, the City Amateur golf tournament will get under way today with 18 holes of qualifying at Capital City.

Bob McCoy, cross-handed player who will defend his title, and Charlie Black are the only champs who will be on hand unless others change their minds overnight. McCoy will take the No. 1 position without qualifying.

Seventy-three entrants had been received last night and the list is expected to top 100 with those coming in today. Entries will be taken until the middle of the afternoon, and those wishing starting time may get them by calling the phone at the first tee, Capital City. The entry fee is $3.

In the absence of such players as Dave Black, who has a shoulder ailment; Tommy Barnes, winner of the recent state meet; Scott Hudson Jr., and Dr. Julius Hughes, all former city champs, the tournament will become a wide-open battle.

Gene Dahlbender Jr., who rated the favorites' list, anyhow, should be shoved to the top or thereabouts. The City Open champion shot "about a 75" yesterday in a practice round.

With McCoy and Black near the top, too, will be Billy Street, runner-up to McCoy last year. Street had a three-over-par 74 yesterday, while McCoy was taking "72 or 73 blows."

"Darkhorses" should be numerous in that wide-open field. In that classification will fall Judd Pollock, former crew man at Yale who came here from Philadelphia; Hugh Nunnally, Bud Bicknell and other Capital City "regulars," as well as B. B. Drummond, Charlie Brumby, Dr. Pierce Harris, Joe Horacek, Charlie Ozmer, Curtis Benton, Bobby Adair, Colon Sappenfield and Fred Mason.

There should be plenty of upsets.

A list of the starting times made up through yesterday afternoon follows:

9 a. m.: B. Phillips, B. Hutchison, T. Pendergrast. 9:05, Ed Lovett, Gus King, Dave Griffith; 9:15, Ewing, Smith, McDuffie; 9:20, Homer Hill, Sappenfield, Hilley; 9:30, H. C. McDonald, G. A. McDonald; 10, Bobby Adair, Filmore Thach, W. H. Berry; 10:10, Benton, Mason; 10:15, Charlie Ozmer; 10:30, Ed Jarvis; 10:45, Bill McDonald, L. Phillips; 11, J. Baxter, Red Collins, Allan Ford.

1:10 p. m., Broadwater, Pelot, Baker; 1:25, Elder, Sampson, Cheney; 1:30, Roby Robinson, Billy Street, Brown; 1:35, Monie Ferst; 1:40, Gene Brooks; 1:45, Alfred Kennedy, Hilley, Kirwan; 1:50, Dahlbender, Bicknell; 1:55, Drummond, Lynch; 2, Barnes, Currie, Ison; 2:05, Pollock, Horacek; 2:10, Charles Williams, Coleman; 2:15, D. Ison; 2:20, G. Allen, Gordon Clay; 2:25, Thompson, Benkert, Hill; 2:30, Nunnally, Scott; 2:35, Morgan, Johnson, Nunnally; 2:40, P. Barnes, McGehee, McGaughey; 2:45, Allen, Minnick, Brumby; 2:50, Flowers, Wofford; 2:55, Baskin; 3:05, Dr. Harris.

Players will qualify in threesomes at five-minute intervals.

Howard Jones' Son Willed One Dollar

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 5.—(AP)—Howard H. Jones, well-known University of Southern California football coach who died July 27, left an estate listing real estate valued in excess of $500 and personal property at more than $5,000 and yielding a $500 yearly income.

A son, Clarka Howard Jones, 24, was bequeathed $1 with the explanation he already had been provided for in a $25,000 insurance policy, said the will filed for probate today.

The residue of the estate, including a $48,000 insurance policy, was bequeathed to a daughter, Carolyn Jones, 14.

No provision was noted for Jones's widow, Mrs. Jane Dean Jones, reported ill in a New Orleans hospital, but the will pointed out that Jones was disposing of only his share of community property of husband and wife.

VOLS, SMOKIES DIVIDE.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Aug. 5.—(AP)—The Knoxville Smokies split a double-header tonight with Nashville, the Smokies winning the first 4 to 3, while the Vols copped the second, 4-2.

The opening tilt was a well pitched affair with Smythe and Jeffcoat tooling up in a duel that found each team limited to seven blows. Jeffcoat was relief in the ninth.

In the second game, Knoxville went scoreless until the last inning of the seven-inning contest, when they scored two runs before the rally faded.

TODAY'S GUEST STAR.

Dale Stafford, Detroit Free-Press: "Baseball fans in Washington are criticizing Owner Clark Griffith. . . . They say he has a set price on all ball players—$200,000 if he's selling, and $7,500 (the waiver price) if he's buying."

No Yes Man, O'Daniel Says In Senate Talk

Must Protect Our Way, He Says in Early Maiden Speech.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—(UP) Senator W. Lee (Pass-the-Biscuits-Pappy) O'Daniel, Democrat, Texas, said in his "maiden" speech today that this nation must go to war, if necessary, to protect the American form of government.

Setting a forensic precedent by addressing the senate the day after he had been sworn in—the late Huey Long waited two days—the colorful Texan bluntly announced that he could not be a "rubber stamp or a yes man for anyone."

He told his colleagues they would be making "another serious blunder by extending the service of Army trainees.

He let his associates know that he is wearing no man's collar. He said he would support President Roosevelt only as long as he acted within the limits of the constitution and the laws of the United States.

Lapsing into folksy vernacular, he reminded his colleagues that when "some folks talk about co-operation, they forget the 'co' and think about the operation." He recalled that "about all the bigwigs in the national administration" were sent to Texas during the recent senatorial campaign "for the sole purpose of 'operating' on me."

"Well, that's all right," he went on. "We had a great fight. The battle is over, and so far as I am concerned I'm going to try to do just one job here and that is to give the President 100 per cent support in doing his job, and I'm going to try to give the people 100 per cent service in doing my job.

"I will let the politics of the case take care of itself in the future."

Rail, Ship Workers May Buy Bonds

Officials of the companies in statements urging employes to save for the future by the purchase of defense savings stamps and bonds said the deductions would be transmitted to the national treasury with other pay roll deductions.

Legion Auxiliary To Aid Bond Sale

First organization to volunteer to sponsor sale of defense saving stamps at booths in downtown department stores is the state American Legion Auxiliary, Arthur Cheatham, deputy administrator, announced yesterday.

Mrs. Ernest P. Harris, state president of the auxiliary, and Mrs. C. R. McQuown, vice president, have announced that their organization will man booths in the bigger cities of the state, Atlanta, Savannah, Macon, Augusta and Columbus, five and a half days a week. In smaller towns booths will be kept open one or two days each week.

The Legion group is one of several organizations expected to do volunteer duty in the sale of defense saving stamps, Cheatham said. He said the Atlanta Junior League and the Junior Chamber of Commerce are planning an active part in the program and at least eight booths will be opened in downtown stores.

Lepke Trial Deferred; Jurymen Hard To Find

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—(AP)—The unwillingness of prospective jurors to serve caused deferment today of the murder trial of Louis Lepke Buchalter and three co-defendants until September 15, but Kings county Judge Franklin Taylor flatly refused to postpone it until after the municipal election.

Buchalter, now a federal prisoner after a guilty plea to a narcotics law violation, Emmanuel Weiss, Louis Capone and Philip (Little Farvel) Cohen are charged with the slaying of Joseph Rosen, Brooklyn storekeeper, in 1936. All have pleaded innocent.
